Local Telephone Operators Back at Their Switch Boards

Striking Operators and Wiremen Returned to Work at 7 O'Clock This Morning—New Wage Scale To Be Announced Tomorrow

Lowell's telephone service swung back to its normal and active basis today when the 125 striking operators and 65 wiremen connected with the local exchange returned to work at 7 a.m. The strike was officially declared off at a late hour last night on the return to the city from the Boston conference of the representatives of the local unions. Miss Helen Moran and Thomas Delaney—and their arrival with the good tidings was greeted with resounding cheers by the members of both unions, meeting in joint session in Lincoln hall.

The strikers on returning to work claimed victory, and it seems justified, but the terms of the new wage scale will not be made public until tomorrow.

Agreement Ending Strike Ratified—Phone Operators Return to Work

Telephone Service, Paralyzed in New England Since Last Tuesday, Resumed This Morning—Operators To Get $19 Per Week

BOSTON, April 21.—The agreement reached by the committee of striking telephone operators with officials of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co., and the Providence Telephone Co., yesterday, was ratified at a mass meeting of the strikers today and all union members were ordered to report for work at their switchboards at 7 o'clock this afternoon.

Telephone service here and in other cities and towns affected by the strike of operators and electrical workers of the New England Telephone & Telegraph and Providence Telephone companies, was resumed in part early today. Wherever available on short notice, the day operators began their duties at the regular hours, 7 or 8 a.m., after being notified of the settlement of the strike which started last Tuesday.

Although the operators and allied workers did not receive the full amount of their wage demands, most of them appeared pleased with the results obtained especially the winning of the right of collective bargaining.

Others expressed dissatisfaction with the failure of the committee to obtain the full amount of the demands and said they would not return to work until they had considered the situation carefully at a mass meeting today.

TERMS OF AGREEMENT
The details of the strike settlement will not be available until tomorrow when the strike committee and company officials draw up the final terms. By the agreement reached last night operators in Boston will receive $19 a week after seven years of service and a minimum wage of $19 instead of $8. They demanded $22 at the end of four years. The new scale will retroactive

Lowell Welcomes Fighting Heroes of The Great World War PEACE MAKERS AWAIT ANSWER

Camp Devens Men and Others Parade From Station and Receive Warm Welcome on South Common—Various Organizations Hold Open House

Lowell paid splendid tribute to her citizens that habitually surrounds fighting heroes of the world war on long drawn out parades or speeches day when she feted and feasted several hundred uniformed men, short, snappy and simple. The soldiers had valiantly left their comforts and pleasures two years ago to endure the rigors of conflict not to return to what the people of Lowell turn until they had helped bring thought of them and then they were given the freedom of the city and the wherewithal to enjoy it for the rest of the holiday.

Saturday's observance was intended merely as a prelude to a greater and more elaborate affair.

Last Units of 26th To Dock Wednesday

BOSTON, April 21.—The battleship New Jersey, bringing five companies of the 101st Ammunition Train, the last of the units of the 26th Division, was 600 miles off this port at 8:30 a.m. today, according to a radio message received at the naval communication office. She was making about 12 knots an hour, and should reach here on Wednesday.

The transport Vedic, which has on board 200 Yankee Division men among others, had not been reported early today. She is due either to-night or tomorrow morning.

SIDEWALKS ARE BLOCKED WITH PAPERS

One of the most flagrant violations of public courtesy has come to light right in the midst of Lowell in Merrimack square as a result of the practice of the local distributor of a certain Boston newspaper of piling up their papers along the edgestone in this square in front of the waiting room of the Bay State Street Building Co. The distributors of the paper in question have gotten into the habit of creating a regular garrison in front of the waiting room much to the inconvenience of people who have to pass in that vicinity to get cars and for other purposes.

The practice has been going on for some time, but today seemed to bring a climax when an elderly lady went to step from the sidewalk into the street and did not see the pile of papers she tripped, fell, tore her clothing and had to be assisted to the Pawtucketville car.

There has been much comment on the part of persons who pass through the square daily on the ability of the Boston paper to "get away" with this an obstruction in the busiest and most congested part of the city often in the busiest hours of the day. It has been pointed out that other papers have been obliged to maintain offices for the distribution of their journalistic

From all appearances it seems that the police department and the mayor are the ones to make the move for the abolition of this inconvenience for here is every indication that unless it is done away with, consequences more serious than those of today's accident will surely result and the city will be held responsible.

MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

Mrs. Lena Joyal Killed—
Husband and Two Children Seriously Injured

Mrs. Lena Joyal, aged 28 years and residing at 75 Worthen street, this city, was instantly killed in a motorcycle accident yesterday afternoon, while her husband, James, aged 36 years, and their two daughters, Blanche and Bernadette, aged eight and nine years, respectively were seriously injured. Shortly after the accident, which occurred on the highway between Camp Devens and Littleton, Mrs. Joyal was rushed to the base hospital at the camp in an automobile owned by Fred Smart of Ayer, an educator to save her life, but when the hospital was reached it was found that the woman had breathed her last. Mr. Joyal and the two children were also rushed to the hospital, where Mr. Joyal was operated upon. The names of the three were placed on the dangerous list.

The accident occurred shortly after 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. According to witnesses, Joyal was operating the motorcycle, while his wife and two children were seated in the side car. Joyal attempted to pass another car going in the same direction and collided with the auto, his cycle being thrown against a large touring car containing several soldiers. The big touring car, which was owned and driven by Alfred A. Paerler of 111 Bradford street, Everett, in an endeavor to avoid the collision, was driven into a tree by the side of the road. Mrs. Joyal was caught between the cycle and the automobile and her body was badly mangled. Mr. Joyal and his two children were thrown heavily in the road. Mr. Joyal sustained such a bad laceration of his left leg that he was operated upon as soon as he reached the hospital. He also received other injuries about the body. Blanche was cut about the face and suffered a severe shock and a possible fracture of the skull. Bernadette sustained a broken right arm, numerous lacerations and a severe shaking up. None of the occupants of the big machine was injured.

Army men who were in the big machine gave the members of the Joyal family first aid and then all were rushed to the base hospital in automobiles. The owner and operator of the big touring car was taken to the police station in Ayer, where he was questioned about the accident. He was later released.

LOWELL OVERSEAS SOLDIERS ENTERING THE SOUTH COMMON PLAYSTEAD PATRIOT'S DAY

Lowell Welcomes Heroes

more elaborate ovation at a later date. As such, it was a happy indication of what Lowell people are planning to do for their men who were ready to give their all.

It was shortly after 11 o'clock when the formal program got under way on the South common. It had been planned to have a special train leave Camp Devens at 10 o'clock to bring the Lowell soldiers back. But the train was late and most of the fighters came in other modes of conveyance and waited until the special finally did pull into the Middlesex street station with only a score or so of uniformed passengers.

However, the rest of the soldiers were waiting at the station and at 11 o'clock a line was formed of Yankee Division members, Acorn Division boys, 25th Division of New York lads, Canadian fighters, United States navy men and in fact nearly every branch of the service had its representatives.

The United States Cartridge Co. band with its leader, Sergeant William Reagan, in uniform, got at the head of the line and Col. Charles A. Stevens gave the command "Forward." Up the Thorndike street hill they marched and came down the slope of the South common in a long column of two rows. Gold stripes were glittering in the sunlight, tanned faces were wreathed in smiles and some five or six thousand expectant relatives and friends turned admiring eyes to the jauntily swinging line whose every step was in perfect unison with the cadence of the snap snap of the musicians who were thrashing out in the city to the soldiers and sailors.

Col. Charles A. Stevens responded and on behalf of the men accepted the hospitality. He, too, congratulated the Lowell veterans and urged that they continue to go through the days of peace what their beloved commander asked them to do in the days of war—carry on.

Congressman John Jacob Rogers was an unexpected visitor but he got on to the stand just in time to follow Col. Stevens. He was loudly cheered when introduced by the mayor and then came more congratulations from a man speaking in a double capacity, for the people of Lowell and for the people of the United States.

When the congressman had finished, Mayor Thompson told the uniformed men that passes for restaurants and theatres would be given out from the bandstand, and the soldiers lined up in a way that reminded them of the old mess lines in the days of war. When the circle had been made, the band chambered onto the new band stand and the soldiers lined up around it. The crowds which had gathered on the Summer street slope scampered down toward the magnet and in a few minutes the band was playing "The Star Spangled Banner." At once there shot up the hand of every overseas man to his overseas cap, the sailors came to their regulation salute and civilians were bare-headed.

Mayor Thompson then got under way immediately. Grouped around the bandstand were Commissioners Marshall, Morse, Murphy and Donnelly. The mayor's welcome was brief but to the point. Congratulations was his keynote and throughout ran the theme of hospitality. The mayor referred to the liberty loan campaign and asked the people of the city to back up the work of the men in front of him by subscribing. Then he threw open the city to the soldiers and sailors.

Col. Charles A. Stevens responded and on behalf of the men accepted the hospitality. He, too, congratulated the Lowell veterans and urged that they continue to go through the days of peace what their beloved commander asked them to do in the days of war—carry on.

The Knights of Columbus, Y.M.C.A., War Camp Community Service, Elks, Eagles and various other organizations did everything possible to make the men feel at home. The theatres and restaurants had their share of uniformed visitors, especially in the evening. Some were content merely to watch one of the many amateur hall games in various parts of the city. Many enjoyed the band concert given by the Lowell Cadet band in front of city hall from 6 to 8 in the evening under the auspices of the Knights of Columbus. The usual Saturday night dance given by the Lowell War Camp Community Service in high school hall attracted a large number as did the Community Service club in the Rundells building. All Lowell united to make the uniformed man feel at home and from beginning to end, the reception was one big success.

Before the Bavarian capital have been reinforced by soldiers from Wurtemberg.

K. OF C. TO CONDUCT CHARITY BALL
Once more is Lowell council Knights of Columbus, about to burst forth into the chrysalis of action for a worthy cause, for on Wednesday evening, May 7, in Associate hall, the council will conduct a charity ball, the proceeds of which will be equally distributed among the following institutions: St. John's Hospital, St. Peter's Orphanage, French-American Orphanage and the Knights of Columbus Guild. While the Knights in the past have devoted their efforts to the comforting of men in the service and are still doing that work, yet the local council is not overlooking Lowell charities and for this reason the charity ball was conceived. None of the above institutions is self-supporting and the knights are to endeavor to lighten their burdens to some extent.

In order that the ball may be the success it should be the council is giving the public an opportunity to lend its support to the worthy cause either by purchasing tickets or contributing to a program that is now being selected among the business men of the city.

A committee consisting of 100 members of Lowell council has been organized to conduct the ball and no effort is being spared to insure a financial and social success. Various sub-committees have been appointed and plans for the affair are rapidly rounding into shape.

All the officers of the ball have not yet been announced nor the patrons, but one office has already been filled—that of floor director. Peter F. Gill was elected to this important position at the last meeting of the ball committee and the choice has met with the general approval of the council. The committee will meet again tomorrow evening to further its plans and receive reports from various sub-committees. Detailed plans will be announced in the near future.

News of the Churches

Happy and joyous was the observance of Easter, 1919, in the churches of the city yesterday. The unique significance of the great day this year in view of the dawn of peace and safe return of many soldiers and sailors was faithfully interpreted in the elaborate musical programs carried out in Catholic and Protestant churches alike. The excellent weather of the forenoon lent a tinge of brightness to the entire observance and the church interiors were veritable reflections of the brightness and cheer without. Floral decorations were in constant abundance on the church altars with the single omission of the Easter lily. The lily was seen only on rare occasions and was unusually scarce. Nevertheless, ingenious decorators assembled other blossoms which gave the various houses of worship added beauty.

In the Catholic churches, especially, was the marked contrast between the somberness of the Lenten season and the joyousness of the resurrection brought out. In both Catholic and Protestant churches the musical programs were most elaborate.

St. Patrick's

Rev. Timothy P. Callahan celebrated the solemn high mass at St. Patrick's church yesterday, assisted by Rev. Joseph A. Curtis as deacon and Rev. James J. Kerrigan, as sub-deacon. Rev. Fr. Kerrigan read the announcements and preached the Easter sermon. The pastor, Rt. Rev. William O'Brien, P.E., was present at the mass. Under the direction of Michael J. Johnson, the church choir sang hymns appropriate to the day and the sanctuary choir of 50 voices in charge of Rev. Bro. Nilus, sang the responses, processional and recessional. The soloists were Miss Alice Murphy, Mrs. James Morris, Andrew A. McCarthy and John J. McNabb. Monsignor O'Brien celebrated the 7 o'clock mass and members of the Holy Family sodality received communion. Rev. Fr. Kerrigan assisted the pastor in giving communion. Last evening vespers services were held at 7 o'clock and again an elaborate musical program was carried out.

Immaculate Conception

At the 8 o'clock mass at the Immaculate Conception church yesterday members of the Third Order of St. Francis and junior branch of the Children of Mary sodality received communion. Rev. James B. McCarron, O.M.I., was the celebrant and Rev. Dennis A. Sullivan, O.M.I., assisted in giving communion. The solemn high mass at 11 o'clock was celebrated by Rev. Albert L. McDermott, O.M.I., of Buffalo, N.Y. He was assisted by Rev. Owen P. McQuaid, O.M.I., as deacon and Rev. James B. McCarron, O.M.I., as sub-deacon. The pastor, Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O.M.I., preached the sermon and made the announcements. The church choir, directed by William L. Gookin and assisted by the sanctuary choir, gave an excellent program of Easter music both at the high mass and at the vespers service in the evening. The soloists were Miss Vera Moody, Miss Lena McQuaid, Miss Katherine McCaffrey, Miss E. Murningham, James King, William O'Connell and D. P. Martin. Mrs. Hugh Walker was organist.

St. Michael's

Rev. James F. Lynch sang the solemn high mass at St. Michael's church yesterday and was assisted by Rev. Francis J. Mullin as deacon and Rev. T. J. Heagney as sub-deacon. Rev. John J. Shaw, the pastor, was present in the sanctuary. The altar was beautifully decorated and the musical program by the church and sanctuary choirs was under the general direction of James A. Murphy. Last evening vespers services were held and again an elaborate musical program carried out.

St. Peter's

At the 7:30 o'clock mass at St. Peter's church yesterday members of the Married Ladies' sodality received communion in a body. Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan was the celebrant and Rev. Daniel J. Kelcher, Ph.D., assisted in giving communion. Rev. George Quinn, O.M.I., celebrated the solemn high mass at 11 o'clock and he was assisted by Rev. Fr. Heffernan as deacon and Rev. Francis L. Shea as sub-deacon. The pastor spoke on the significance of Easter Sunday. The church choir, under the direction of Rev. Peter Linehan, gave a most excellent musical program, both at the high mass and the vespers service in the evening.

Sacred Heart

Rev. P. J. Phelan, O.M.I., sang the solemn high mass at the Sacred Heart church yesterday and Rev. James McDermott, O.M.I., assisted as deacon and Rev. William Mahan, O.M.I., as sub-deacon. Rev. John P. Flynn, O.M.I., the pastor, was the preacher and Joseph Jennings was master of ceremonies. John J. Kelly was in charge of the musical program and it was of the same high quality as in previous years. The regular church choir united forces with the sanctuary choir of 70 voices and the soloists were Miss Katherine Sharkey, Miss Elizabeth Flanagan, John McMahon and George Kerwin. Mr. Kelly was at the organ. Vesper services were held at 6:30 and again an elaborate musical program was carried out. Members of the Holy Angels' sodality received communion at the 8:30 o'clock mass. Rev. Fr. Mahan, O.M.I., was celebrant and the pastor assisted in giving communion. Announcement was made that on Sunday evening, May 4, a sacred concert will be given at this church and will include talent from all parts of the city. Various improvements have been made on the church organ and the coming concert is looked forward to with much anticipation.

St. Anthony's

The regular holy week services were held at St. Anthony's church beginning with the tenebrae Wednesday evening and coming to a close Easter Sunday with a solemn high mass and solemn benediction. One of the most impressive phases of the observance came on Good Friday when a procession was held commemorative of the burial of Christ. Rossini's "Stabat Mater" was sung by the choir. The beautiful "Qui est Homo" was sung in a most creditable manner by Mrs. J. H. Donnelly and Mrs. Mary Mooney. On Easter Sunday, before the parish mass, Rt. Rev. Bishop da Silva blessed the new town and banners of the Holy Ghost society and immediately after the solemn high mass a procession was formed at the door of the church and proceeded to the society's hall headed by the Lowell Portuguese band. Anthony Lucio is president of the society.

As Viewed By Argus

The first stage of the great debate has come to a close. We hear less the apparent that a League of Nations means the establishment of certain relationships between nations in which almost endless in their variety and in the conception of national identity, is the measure of their importance. In basic, the existence of nations distinct from each other is fundamental to the very idea of a league. The covenant does not undertake to merge history—the everlasting devastation of war in the absence of an organized method of self-government. War and its terrible consequences were now entering into the future under the impetus of science and invention were the considerations in favor of a League. The dangers involved in this country distinguished the position of the one party. The need as opposed to the expediency perhaps what forces a comprehensive agreement with all the nations of the world was a subject upon which Washington gave no study and tended no advice. As to the fact that we are nevertheless confronted with a departure in the contemplation of such alliances, America's position is not unique; the entire enterprise is a new venture for mankind and our problem is not whether it is novel but whether it is desirable. It is a new thing we are trying to accomplish and new expedients are necessary.

Parallel with the considerations of nationalism and national traditions comes the revolt against obligations in the remote parts of the world to maintain peace with others, by arms if necessary, and to assume constructive responsibility for backward peoples' conditions. We do not want to bind our sons to Asia or Armenia will be dictated and ultimately disregarded is plain that an insignificant diff-

Bronchial Coughs—

For quick relief from wearing bronchial coughs that "hang on" and weaken, for thick wheezy breathing, irritated throat and air passages, for sleep-disrupting night coughs, take Foley's Honey and Tar.

In it, you quickly get the curative influence of the pine tar and other healing ingredients, together with the mollifying and laxative effect of honey.

Foley's Honey and Tar is also good for croup, whooping cough, tickling throat and hoarseness. It does not contain morphine, chloroform or any other injurious drug. Do not accept a substitute.

"My wife contracted a severe cold which finally developed into bronchial trouble. She suffered almost continually. The remedies we tried gave only temporary relief. I happened to pick up one of Foley's Family Almanacs and as a result purchased a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. She had used half the bottle before she began to feel better, and the cold lost its much better at once. She continued using it until she used 7 bottles, which effected a permanent cure." Yours respectfully, W. S. Bailey, Lancaster, Ky.

MRS. DOOLEY'S ADVICE TO WORKING GIRLS

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I wish all girls who work and suffer from functional disorders would profit by my advice and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I was married, when I came home from work at night, I would be just worn out with pain which dragged me down. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it made me feel like a new woman. I can work from morning until night and it does not bother me, and I wish all girls who suffer as I did would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. H. Dooley, 1135 25th Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Political Questions

Three questions of political nature arose, very much allied in character to those just discussed. The most important is the Monroe Doctrine. This national policy, according to the view of many, has not been threatened. And procedure hostile to the doctrine would be hostile to the whole League. Moreover, many believe that we cannot in the future maintain the doctrine without the co-operation of other powers. It is quite certain now, however, that the Monroe Doctrine will be included in the revised draft and thus eliminate the question as an element in the discussion. Tariff and immigration, strictly domestic problems, if included within the scope, were raised as objections to the covenant. The whole tenor of the instrument, however, does not permit of the inclusion of domestic concerns within the purview of the League, and since it is against the aims of all nations to subject such matters to League regulation, it is not reasonable to assume that problems relating to American affairs would be an exception. Rebellion against the participation of Europe in the settlement of American affairs of whatever nature, brings up considerations similar to those in reference to the Monroe Doctrine. As we may need European assistance to enforce the doctrine, so we may welcome assistance in the solution of other difficulties which may arise. Moreover, since the Monroe Doctrine is left inviolate, America is safe from prejudiced dealing of Europe in American affairs.

by Senator Knox, the over-rigidity of boundaries entailed by article 10, as advanced by Judge Hughes, and the danger of increasing wars through the obligation to participate in all difficulties everywhere, brought forward by Senator Lodge. Mr. Root's criticisms aside from the Monroe Doctrine are not identical to the spirit of the original draft and cannot be considered as arguments against adoption.

Of these objections the question of the relative number of votes, the question of withdrawal and the form of the draft will be obviated by the changes already announced, if the Monroe Doctrine will exclude purely American matters, only European problems will come up for decision; and if in such cases we have one vote in nine, it is likely that our vote as well as our influence, as it is now at the peace conference, will be the decisive factor. The fears of Senator Knox as to the possibility of a double League are not justified. Germany's exclusion is temporary. She will be able to come in on an equality with other nations. Her desire to rehabilitate her fortunes and to reconstitute herself among the nations organized offensively and defensively against any war, will dispose her to seek peace rather than glory. Her commerce will dictate amenable Russia, though Bolshevik, is not militaristic; and after the seizure of Bolshevikism is past, she will not be able to withstand singly the organized moral forces of the world behind the League of Nations.

Judge Hughes' objection is not consistent with itself. Article 10 guarantees territorial integrity against external aggression. If prohibition of external aggression means rigidity of boundaries, then boundaries can be made flexible only by war. If that is the case, Judge Hughes is an advocate of militarism; then why undertake to discuss the details of a League of Nations? The most prolific source of war comes from external aggression, and article 10 is a provision against war springing from that source again. The provision does not preclude the shifting of boundaries or the changing of internal relations through rebellion or by political pressure. Senator Lodge's uneasiness is altogether fanciful. That an engagement to prevent war everywhere will therefore cause war everywhere is a use of logic almost inexcusable. It may mean war anywhere—that may be true without a league—but not everywhere; more likely it will be war nowhere.

Sociological Obstacles

The sociological objections come from ignorance and cynicism. It is asserted that human nature will always bring on wars, and that man, as evidenced by his endless failures, is constitutionally incapable of deciding a plan to prevent war. The first consideration can be applied with equiforce to all society. Individuals are as belligerent as nations and yet we maintain a comparatively peaceful and secure existence in society. We have established machinery for peaceful settlement in social life and we have something approaching peace; and if we organize machinery for the peaceful settlement of international affairs, we will have something approaching international peace. As for our past failures, they have been creatures of their creators. Leagues hitherto have been made in the name of the people but not for the people. We are forging a league of democracies for

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "foggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

democracy, not a league of monarchies for monarchs. The interests of the participating element, the masses, are nearer to a common denominator than they ever were before in history.

Partisan Politics

Finally we have had two objections difficult to classify—which arise from partisan politics: that the draft is British and the demand for an early peace. The first has no bearing on the question. The covenant must be studied on its merits, not on or from its authors. It is, in fact, a draft of no particular nation, but more nearly of all of them all. The question of early peace is also without bearing. It does not modify the issues involved. It is, moreover, certain first, that peace could not have been made earlier even if no league had been contemplated; and, again, a scorie peace could not have been made without the League covenant as the foundation. Far from delaying peace, it has, in fact, facilitated the process. It has removed many difficulties which would otherwise have proved insuperable.

In favor of the league is the cry of mankind for the release from the silent and deadly knowledge that it may be tearing children to be destroyed in periodical wars between great military powers.

WHY SALVATION ARMY USES TAMBOURINE

The redemption of the tambourine by the Salvation Army is a real thriller which requires a journey into many lands, lasting over many centuries to review properly.

In the older days, the tambourine was a goodly instrument, but it fell into the hands of the unrighteous and for centuries was used chiefly as a target for dancers who aimed high.

Romance, sparkling and mysterious, hovers about the tambourine, the tingling, fascinating sounds speak of the dance hall, of triflery, of mystery, allurement and destruction. The Salvation Army remembered its biblical existence and brought back to the community the redeemed.

Most persons think of the tambourine as something to be held far above the heads of slipped ladies, to be hit ever and anon by an upcoming foot, but the Salvation Army remembered that way back in the days of Moses, Miriam, the sister of Moses, played the tambourine on the shore of the Red sea, while Moses was leading his people safely over, and accordingly restored it to respectability.

Forty years ago when the Salvation Army was being reviled and persecuted for going into highways and byways to preach Christianity, it decided that an audience collector was essential. Hark! back to Moses and Miriam, the salvationists drafted the tambourine for service.

S. W. Fry of the famous Fry family of Salvationists, a writer of hymns which are now printed in most of the Protestant hymnals of this country, organized Cymbell bands when Salvation fassies went through artistic motions to accompany the music.

About twenty years ago the tambourine was converted into a collection box. It came about this way. One night when the tambourines were ringing and the crowd was worked up to a fever heat, the Salvationist in charge of the street meeting, inspired by the occasion, called out:

"Now's the time, lassies, pass round your tambourines."

The result was astonishing. The tambourines were filled to overflowing. The new fashion in collection boxes had come to stay.

In many lands small drums are designated as tambourine, but the tambourine which the Salvation Army made famous, consists of a wooden hoop, on one side a velvet head, the other side open. Small rods with fly nots serve to tighten or loosen the small metal plates, several pairs of which are fixed loosely around the hoop by a wire.

In the 18th century ladies of quality tuned up their tambourines just as later women of fashion strummed the harp. In the famous Notre Dame Square, gypsy maidens wrought havoc with their jingling tambourines and dancing feet.

The Spanish fandango, Mexican and South American folk dances all require the tambourine, in order to be properly executed.

It repaid the Salvation Army to restore the tambourine to its original purity and goodness, and make it a potent weapon in the hands of Salvationists to war on poverty, disease and dirt.

LOWELL EAGLES ENTERTAIN

The Lowell Eagles entertained the soldier boys in royal fashion at Eagle Hall yesterday, "open house" being kept all day for the lads from "over there." A feature of the event was a fine entertainment, and the boys enjoyed every number to the limit. Refreshments were served throughout the day and evening, and to say that this made a hit with the men, who have been living on army "rations" for several months, is unquestionable.

The entertainment committee was composed of Peter P. Brady, Timothy P. Barry and John Driscoll.

BLIND AND ARMLESS MAN WRITES LETTER

NEW YORK, April 21.—The first letter ever written by one blind soldier without hands to another similarly crippled and afflicted has just been received by an American soldier in a New York hospital. It was a message of good cheer written by Alan H. Nichols, of London, a British soldier, to show his American comrade and fellow sufferer that "a man's a man for a' that."

A copy of the letter and of another dictated by the sightless and handless British soldier have been received by The Associated Press from Sir Arthur Pearson, newspaper publisher and president of the British National Institute for the Blind, of London, England.

One letter was written by Nichols with artificial hands on a specially constructed typewriter keyboard. Its purpose was to encourage all war cripples and to show them that no matter how terribly handicapped they might be, they could rise above their deprivations and conquer the giant defeat. This blind but cheerful and happy Tommy Atkins informed his Yankee fellow in affliction that he was still able to dance, swim, ride horseback, play dominoes (with his nose), feed himself, carry a cane, take his handkerchief from his pocket and do almost everything a man with two eyes and two hands could do except roll his own cigarettes, and strike a match. He uses a taper.

Sir Arthur, in a note accompanying the missive, said he supposed it was the first case on record where a man suffering the tremendously severe handicap of blindness and the loss of both hands had been able to write, unaided, to anyone. The original letter, he said, was sent by Nichols from the Blinded Soldiers' and Sailors' Institute, known as St. Dunstan's, to the wounded American soldier whom the London publisher had seen in a New York hospital.

Here is what is believed to be the first letter ever written by a blind man without hands:

3 New Street,
St. John's Wood, N. W.
March 17, 1918.

Dear Mr. _____:
Enclosed you will find a rather lengthy letter which I dictated for you, but I am typing this one myself to convince you that this is practicable.

I understand from Sir Arthur Pearson that you are free from other physical disabilities and in this respect you are more fortunate than I.

In September, 1916, I received my little souvenir and I still have quite a number of pieces of shrapnel in my chest and abdomen which cause me no little inconvenience at times.

In September, 1917, an operation was necessary to remove some of the shrapnel from my chest and three weeks later another operation resulted in the removal of portions of ribs and still more pieces of foreign material.

At Brighton where I was sent to one of St. Dunstan's annexes I soon found myself getting fit and it was during my convalescence that Sir Arthur arranged for me to take lessons in electric typewriting which enables me to earn my living at present.

My work is most interesting and consists of sneaking on the work of St. Dunstan's and the National Institute for the Blind. It will surprise you to know, when I tell you that in addition to my control and organization the British side compartment which is the advertising medium of the N.I.B. and St. Dunstan's.

In conclusion permit me to express the hope that you have not given up the idea of ever doing anything when I feel sure there is so much for you to do." Yours sincerely,

"ALAN M. NICHOLS"

In his dictated letter Nichols assured his American fellow cripple: "When you are fit and well and able to run about you will find there is still plenty in life worth living for. When I first became like this," he continued, "I could not see anything that was likely to interest me on this earth. I was inclined to think I was the most unfortunate person on earth. In short I was often contemplating a method of quitting this life. At that time I never dreamed of the possibilities of a pair of artificial hands and I can assure you that I now surprise everybody, but the ones I surprise most is myself.

"I can take off my hat, carry a walking stick and attache case and feed myself with a spoon and fork. I have a specially made cigarette case similar in appearance to a metal match box which fits in my waistcoat pocket. I can take this from my pocket and help myself to a cigarette. I have not yet accomplished the feat of striking a match but this is overcome by having what we call on this side spills, strips of paper a foot in length. There are a hundred and one little things I can do, such as using my handkerchief, and this includes taking it from my pocket."

Encouraging the American to write his own letters, Nichols said that he used an ordinary typewriter with a metal case over the keyboard, having holes immediately above each key. The case resembles four steps and in the middle of each step is a rib. To let me know when I am central. Attached to my hand I have a key or striker which resembles a small hammer. It takes me about half an hour for one sheet of foolscap double-spacing but of course this will improve by practice."

Nichols advised the maimed American to carry a soldier-like appearance and to swing his arms, walk in the center of the sidewalk and avoid lamp posts but not to carry a cane. Swedish drill, swimming and dancing were advised for recreation. "When playing dominoes," Nichols added, "I use my nose to feel although this has the tendency to give one the appearance of a chronic sufferer from indigestion or a slave to the bottle."

Telling of his amusing experiences in traveling, Nichols wrote, "I take considerable satisfaction in the fact that I am able to deceive 99 per cent of the people I meet."

"I am wearing a pair of artificial hands which are quite useful," Nichols went on. "They are made of aluminum and I can wear them all day without the least fatigue or discomfort. They are of French man-

EASTER MUSIC IN LOCAL PROTESTANT CHURCHES

There was a deep significance to the Easter music in the churches yesterday, a cominging of the spirit of victory with a blending of sorrow when the public mind visualized the graves of our soldier boys in France and Flanders. This Easter was in striking contrast with the two previous Easters. Two years ago President Wilson's proclamation declaring that state of war existed between the United States and Germany, was two days old, and last year Yankees had just been promised by Secretary Baker that they would have their opportunity to go to the rescue of the French and British and help stop the German drive towards Paris. Everybody was anxious then, but the Prussian war machine finally crumbled and Easter this year was made a glorious sones fest by choice and accident. Yet the beautiful story of the resurrection was the only consolation for many sad hearts.

FIRST PRIMITIVE METHODIST

The services of this church were frequently attended all the day. The pastor preached on the theme, "Christ Risen From the Dead," Mark, 16:6.

The music by the large choir was uniformly good. The congregation was in great spirit the regular Easter hymns. Seven children were presented to the pastor for Christian baptism. The Sunday school session was the largest in attendance for years. The singing and exercises were excellent by the scholars. The choir gave a spirited cantata at the evening service entitled "Redemption's Story" which was well received. The violins and corner supplemented the organ and vocalists to splendid advantage.

The Effect of By-Products On Food and Livestock Prices

If a thousand pound steer could be used for nothing but its food parts, its meat, sold at regular prices, would not bring what the steer cost. If its three hundred and fifty pounds of inedible parts were thrown away, either producers would have to take lower prices for animals or consumers would have to pay more for food.

Hence, Armour and Company must find a way to use and sell every ounce of all livestock.

One of the fundamental benefits of big business is that it has the resources to make scientific investigations in developing new products and the organization to sell them when they have been developed.

There is more imposed upon us than merely the marketing of meat. The beef animal referred to above affords an instance—35% of our efforts in manufacturing and selling have to do with parts that are not food at all. Multiply this one steer by millions. Think of the problem of finding markets for glue, curled hair, hides and pelts, wool, lubricating oils, soaps, banjostrings, pharmaceutical preparations, sand-paper and many other by-products in almost unending quantities. This would be difficult for a concern with lesser facilities; no large organization, even, could accomplish the task without years of endeavor in upbuilding many kinds of markets.

To produce foods economically, we not only have to be in many lines of business but we must also be large factors in each of these many lines. For, upon our ability to profitably market the by-products, depends our ability to buy and sell foods at our present small margin of profit.

But packer by-products relate to more than food. They affect the everyday life of all. They give employment and wages to many additional thousands of workers and they are used in every business and craft, and relate to every industry in the world.

Thus it is that when you purchase Armour Products you are doing two important things:

You are helping assure producers of fair prices which encourage them to raise the food supply of the future.

LOWELL WINS PENNANT

BENNY VALGER WINS

Landed Championship by Beating Salem and Worcester on Holiday

Capt. Freddie Harkins for the second time in two consecutive years led his Lowell polo team to the championship by landing the pennant in the holiday. Salem was defeated on Saturday afternoon, by the score of 6 to 5 in an overtime game, and Worcester was turned back in the evening by the score of 3 to 5.

By winning two games away from home the Lowell team demonstrated its ability to come through in the pinch and vindicated the claims advanced all season that the team was its best when under fire. The victory at Salem in the afternoon came after one of the most strenuously fought games of the season. The game was suspended when play started and the rink was packed to the doors with rooters and well-wishers of the "Witches."

This fact never bothered the champs for they went into the cage determined to win. After battling fiercely for 45 minutes the score stood 5 to 5. Then, after 35 seconds of whirlwind overtime play, Capt. Harkins the brilliant and braying leader of the Lowell team, who ever since donning the Lowell spangles has been a tower of strength to the team, came through with the goal that settled the game and practically settled pennant possession.

Jumping over to Worcester at night, the team still had a fight on to make the championship certain. Salem had a big game at Providence, and if Salem won and Lowell lost the teams would finish even. In order to dispel all chances of a tie, and thus the players were tired after the afternoon game, they went at it hammer and tongs and emerged from the struggle on top. Meanwhile Salem was beaten at Providence, and Lowell won the championship by a full game. The race just closed was one of the best on record. Lowell got away to a bad start, owing to the fact that Capt. Harkins had to leave the original lineup while other teams were adding strength. Finally when the going got too hot and Providence and Salem were showing the way, Capt. Harkins sprung up "Bob" Hart and Pease. Just as soon as these players got into the game the team began to move and within Salem was beaten by a remarkable garrison finish Lowell would not be denied.

The bulk of the glory of winning goes to Capt. Harkins, one of the greatest polo players to ever put on a skate. He is not only a brilliant individual player, but he is a superb tactician, a leader in the game. With Hart as a teammate on the rush line, he perfected a goal combination that would be hard to beat. Hart showed wonderful form in taking the passes and also showed the way to all competitors in executing driving. He is a very successful player, and though starting late he was right up with the leaders in goal scoring. Griffith at center was a very important cog in the champion machine. He starred on both defense and offense, and his great playing did much in helping the team to victory. Al Hart, Aspinwall, during his first year as a professional, developed into a classy performer, while Pease at goal, played brilliantly at all times, and did a great deal to help his team go over the top. He's a classy cage guardian, and the fact that he can jump from bad to worse is a great ability. Both times gave them an opportunity to do more in the offensive department. Yes, Lowell had a real championship outfit, and we take great pleasure in congratulating Capt. Harkins and his entourage, on their high class polo, which gave us all season.

The success of the league was due in a large measure to the efficient direction of President Fred Moore, owner of the Lowell team and head of the league. To his splendid management, due to the completion of a season that at the outset looked dubious and turned out to be one of the most prosperous and successful in the history of eastern polo.

ELMIRA'S ALL GIRLS SHOW THURSDAY

The Elmira club, which has established an enviable reputation in local concert circles, will present an entertainment in Associate hall on Thursday evening, which promises to surpass all previous endeavors. The program has been carefully arranged and rehearsed under the efficient direction of Charles D. Slattery, one of Lowell's most prominent musical directors. Mr. Slattery has had wide experience in the management and presentation of concert programs, and in securing him to direct the coming show the Elmiras made a ten stroke. An "all girls" show was decided upon and in securing the ladies to appear, the management "signed up" many of the most noted in the city. They have been assigned splendid numbers and expect to be at their best in the coming entertainment. There will be a chorus of 50 voices. George Smith will preside at the piano.

Defeated Phinney Boyle Via the K.O. Route at Crescent Rink on Holiday

Benny Valger, the "French flash," from New York, lived up to his reputation as a championship contender, and a wonderful two handed fighter, when he defeated Phinney Boyle of Lowell in two rounds at the Crescent A. A. Saturday afternoon before the largest "house" of the season.

Valger displayed class in all departments. He was like a streak of lightning on his feet, and worked both hands with remarkable speed and precision. His demonstrated exceptional ability in following up an advantage and in the second round by a fusillade of blows that came with bewildering succession and baffled his opponent. He cut him with a series of low, sharp, well directed punches to regulate his shot several well directed punches to the head, one landing on Boyle's jaw for a knock down and knock out.

The end came so fast that few realized just what had happened. In the last round, however, both held his own. Both boys boxed expertly, yet demonstrated rare speed. Boyle sent over one to the jaw that rocked the "flash," but Valger came back strong and evened up before the bell sounded. The good work of both men wasistic and indications pointed to a good match.

Valger evidently had learned what he wanted in the first session, and at the tap of the gong for the second round, he went at his man with determination, and scored a series of whirling punches or drew a lead from Boyle and forced the Lowell boy to miss. This was as he planned, and he immediately cut loose and unhooked a series of blows, with all finding their objective and when Boyle dropped his hands to prevent further blows, Valger took up the sleep produced. Later Coulier of Boston referred the main bout.

In the semi-final Frank Mollard of Lowell won from Jack Mansfield of Lawrence via the K. O. route in five rounds. He was the only undefeated boxer, despite the fact that his opponent had a weight advantage.

In the preliminaries Bill Murphy won the decision over Al Diamond after six lively rounds and Young Neary won over Young Smith in two rounds.

Jimmy Gardner, formerly of Lowell and in his day one of the best boxers in the country at his weight, was presented to the members and he received an ovation. Red Allen of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Charlie Coughlin of the Rivet and the latter accepted the gong. It was announced that Al Shuler of New Bedford will appear at the next meeting on Thursday evening against "Louisiana" or some other highclass opponent.

PROBABLE REFEREE FOR THE BIG FIGHT ALREADY IS IN TRAINING

When the heavyweight title is dragged forth from cold storage and thrown into the ring as the piece de resistance somewhere in America July 1 there will be in the ring three regular men, each in the pink of condition and ready to step any distance.

And that doesn't mean that it is to be a three-cornered row. The third man in the ring very probably will be Jack Hinkel, the best known challenger in the country today. And it sure is the case neither Jess Willard, champion, nor Jack Dempsey, challenger, will be in better condition.

For Matt already is in training. He has been for the last two years. His 52 wins are the most unusual fighter of some fame in his twentieth year.

"I'm feeling younger today than I did then," said Hinkel in explaining how he brought the fountain of youth to him and kept it there.

For Matt is already in training.

He has been for the last two years. His 52 wins are the most unusual fighter of some fame in his twentieth year.

"I take off two or three pounds every Sunday morning. I can't afford to let my waist line get away with it," he said. Just so the belt won't slip a notch between Sundays he wears a pair around his mid section.

Hinkel weighs 217 and at mighty fast on his feet.

"You've got to be on your toes in the ring," said Matt. "Footwork with the referee is as important as with the fighters. We've got to keep out of the corners and also not be breaking the view of spectators or judges. The referee comes in, watch each other punch started and if he doesn't move fast he may find himself blocking a swing now and then."

When Matt is refereeing he has his own program of training for the day of the fight. He starts on soft foods, especially bread, and has breakfast on soft boiled eggs and bacon sparingly.

Hinkel probably is the only simonpure amateur referee in the country. It is a hobby with him for he doesn't need the money. He has three-quarters of a million of his world's goods. He never took a cent for his services for nearly a hundred and fifty years.

Referees have been paid all amounts from five bucks up for being the third man in the ring, perhaps the biggest fee ever paid for being the third man in the ring. Silar died from influenza in the game Nelson fought at Bedford in 1906. His bill is said to have been $2500. Other big box office referees have received as high as $10,000 for a fight.

Matt is a hundred per cent patriot.

An old acquaintance, hitting "em up the back," before the July 1 tape was reached, stopped in Matt's place of business and wanted to sell his $50 Liberty bond.

"Why don't you keep it, Jim?" Matt pleaded.

"I've gotta let more," said Jim.

"Show me how many you have," Matt replied. "The man didn't happen to have any more on his person and Matt gave him a little lecture on patriotism, winding up with:

"It's right that you see it, Jim."

Review of 26th Tomorrow

CAMP DEVENS, April 21.—The last details of the final review of the 26th Division on Tuesday have been completed and field orders No. 8, issued yesterday, announced in detail the orders and plans for the review, which will be made the biggest military ceremony ever held in New England since the entry of the United States into the world war.

According to the official order the actual review will start at 3 o'clock, but it will be preceded at 2 o'clock by the sword of battle strewners to regimental and battalion colors, and of decorations to officers and enlisted men, the entire Yankee Division constituting the escort for this ceremony.

German Maneuver To Gain Time

PARIS, April 21.—Today's newspapers see in Germany's sending "couriers" instead of delegates of proper standing to Versailles, nothing but evidence of bad faith and a transparent maneuver to gain time.

The Echo de Paris says the associated governments are determined not to accept subordinate personages.

According to the Havas agency, surprise has been manifested over the fact that Germany did not select more important men for her peace delegation than Minister Von Haniel, Herr Von Keller, Ernst Schmidt, Herr Reimann and Herr Laders. According to a German note, they will have power only to receive the text of the terms and not to sign the treaty.

It is declared that in these circumstances, the sending of these delegates to Versailles would be useless.

"Practice What You Preach" For Loan

BOSTON, April 21.—A "practice what you preach" parade, headed by Gov. Coolidge and Mayor Andrew J. Peters and participated in by members of the liberty loan committee and hundreds of workers, opened the Victory loan drive here today. The line was formed at the State House and passed down Park street to "Liberty court" on the common, where the marchers made good their slogan and bought bonds at Liberty cottage.

Loan Campaign at Chicago

CHICAGO, April 21.—Between midnight and 3 o'clock this morning, thousands of people in Grant park, on the lake front, sang and cheered, opening the Victory loan campaign. Big guns were fired near the lake, whistles blew, bells were rung and Michigan avenue was illuminated. The campaign started with more than $12,000,000 in subscriptions.

Two Mail Aviators Burned to Death

PARIS, Sunday, April 20.—An airship carrying mail from Strassburg to Paris, fell today near St. Didier. Two of the crew were burned to death and a third was seriously injured. The mail matter carried by the airship was destroyed.

LOST TO MANCHESTER QUINCY REJOICES OVER HIGH, 5 TO 2 MARATHON VICTORY

The Lowell high school baseball team dropped its opening game of the 1919 season Saturday afternoon to Manchester N. H., high, 5 to 2, principally through the inability of the boys to hit Gooch, the visiting pitcher. A good sized crowd was on hand at Spalding park and pulled hard for a local win, but had to be satisfied with the knowledge that the team looks good even when it's losing and ought to have won.

Anastas pitched for Lowell and deserved a better fate. He allowed but four hits and fanned nine, but the Washington senators never forced Walter Johnson in a more cold hearted manner. The visitors had a slight edge in the game, but the home team had the better chance to score. Lewis, the pitcher, was the cover of the season without marring the cover of the ball in the first inning, and scored two runs minus a hit. After that they never threatened, two more hits and fanned nine, but the Washington senators never forced Walter Johnson in a more cold hearted manner. THE "HAND" THAT DRAWS IN TRADE

Did it ever occur to you that well planned, shrewd, sensible advertising could be pictured as a hand put out to draw people?

Carrying the simile further we can say that the severer your advertising, the more strength there is in it, the better it is. The first page of the primer of advertising says that, "Advertising is the second effort of the business man to attract attention to his business with the idea of attracting patronage."

One business man says, "My goods advertise themselves—every time I open my store the local folks look up in the Evening paper and find no mention of them in the ad column." Another alleged business man says, "I don't need to advertise because I have the best trimmed windows in the city." Yes, but will see them on rainy, cold, windy days? What's the score? Depending on merely its windows to keep the stock turning over?

A third business man says, "I don't need to spend much money advertising because I now have an established trade." What does he mean by "established trade"? Is he referring to the appearance of non-existing? Oftentimes it's like a spring fall of snow—you have it in the morning but it's gone at night. The thing that keeps an established trade is advertising and if you don't believe it ask some of the old boys who lost their established trade by failing to keep up their advertising.

But, we must return to the text: "Advertising is a hand to pull in trade and the best hand you can put out to draw in trade in Lowell is an ad in

THE SUN

LOWELL'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

FOR A BETTER WORLD

There are two theories in the effort to make the world better.

One is in holding out the fear of punishment for doing wrong, and the other the hope of reward for doing right.

Both have been effective, but we think that too much stress has been put upon the fear of punishment.

Punishment, for instance, has not the value in preventing crime for gain that we have all supposed; for those who steal never do so with the idea of being caught.

Stealing is in the belief that punishment can be evaded.

The world is getting better because we, who comprise it, are finding that it pays to conduct our social and business life honestly and do our individual tasks well-efficiently.

The world is getting better just to the degree that we learn the true reward of honesty and efficiency.

There is for illustration the dis-courteous, inefficient employee of the public or semi-public institution.

We report him with the idea of his reprimand or discharge, and to instill the fear of punishment in others who might incline to dis-courtesy and inefficiency.

But how few of us ever report the courteous, efficient street car conductor, the one who helps women with children off the car and who is always ready to oblige his patrons by acts of kindness and courtesy.

There are always enough of us to complain, but few who command.

We are all more apt to do those things which we should do and refrain from doing those things which we should not do by the hope of reward rather than through the fear of punishment.

Here is in part a letter by the president of a big business concern to its customers and which illustrates this thought of appreciation:

"While complaint is important, yet all of us would get a good deal further along if we would be as quick to compliment when compliment is deserved."

"If any of our individual salesmen or deliverymen are unusually courteous or efficient, why, let me know it so that I may offer the proper encouragement and reward."

"I will know those deserving of complaint soon enough, but I might never find the fellow deserving of reward unless I am told of him."

"I think if all of us in business would be as quick to compliment as to kick—why, this would be a good deal better business world."

Perhaps the reason we have all held out more fear of punishment than hope of reward in the matter of employment is that we have thought imprisonment cheaper than reward.

The price of maintaining reward is greater than that of punishment as a matter of first cost, but the final economy and profit is greater in providing true incentive to more and better effort and free from the weakening influence of fear.

TELEPHONE STRIKE

The telephone strike is settled and so far as the terms have been reported, they are not such as to offer the operators any great reason for rejoicing. The wage of $10 per week after seven years of service, considering the present high cost of living, is barely sufficient to support a girl respectfully. The operator who dresses according to the mode and lives at a respectable boarding house, assuming that she where the majority against it was has to provide for herself, will not $800.

DEFENDING THE LEAGUE

United States Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, in an address in Boston, the other night, made an able defense of the League of Nations. He presented arguments showing its reasonableness and proving very logically that it was the only alternative of heavy taxes, increased armaments and the certainty of future destructive wars. He defended President Wilson's attitude in the matter, showing that the president, in advocating the League of Nations to prevent war, was carrying out the instructions of congress embodied in the naval appropriation bill enacted in 1917. He denied that by joining the league, any nation would surrender any part of its sovereignty. The various criticisms of the league, he maintains, were largely unjust and particularly so that which represented the league as a super-nation to which the signature powers would yield their sovereignty and lose identity. They simply form a compact to do certain things of their own volition and in the full exercise of their nationalism.

The reduction of armaments, he maintained, would render it impossible for any nation inclined to war to make a surprise attack upon any of its neighbors. He pointed out that the revolutions of the Balkans and of South America had been largely due to the results of profiteering by private manufacturers of munitions. The nations would not consider it necessary in the future, to arm against possible attack.

According to the senator's contention which seemed in most cases quite reasonable, there is nothing to be feared from this League of Nations and it will prove in time to be a blessing to the world at large by preventing wars and doing away for all time with the military rivalry that kept great nations competing in destructive armaments so as to be satisfied with what is fair and there should be a government tribunal to pass upon the demands made upon the government or upon the management of public service corporations. With such a method of adjudicating labor troubles in public utilities, strikes should be strictly prohibited.

As at present the American public is at the mercy of the railroad trainmen, the telegraph and telephone operators, the coal miners, the electricians and a few other crafts. Should this state of affairs be allowed to continue?

It is up to congress to take the action necessary to protect the public against the consequence of conflicts between employer and employee in public service utilities, and it is hoped that a sufficient number of congressmen will be found with courage enough to take the matter up and handle it in a proper manner.

TURKISH ATROCITIES

Even our oldest citizens can look back as long as they remember and recall the news of Turkish atrocities perpetrated upon Armenia, Syria and other countries under Turkish dominion.

Not even the wars waged against Turkey have had the effect of stamping out her brutal methods of persecution and the iniquities of her sway. Recent despatches announce that great numbers of women and children have been released from the harems and turned out to shift for themselves with no prospect of anything except destitution and starvation. Their friends and relatives are banished or slain. It is well to have them released from the worst form of slavery, but in setting them free, the Turkish authorities should have provided for their subsistence.

It is to be hoped that after the declaration of peace these conditions will be fully remedied and that an end will be put to Turkish atrocities, as they have been known for ages past. Turkey should be driven from Europe and Turkish methods should be stamped out wherever they exist so that in the future, the world may be relieved not only of German militarism, but of Turkish vice and brutality.

The department of labor estimates that a million new houses are needed at the present time in the United States. This is probably correct and is also probably a conservative estimate. But until the people who sell food and clothing reduce prices, the people who sell building material reduce prices, and men who work at building houses announce they will work for less than a dollar an hour, there is strong probability this country will still be short a million houses.

When New Hampshire suffragists asked Senator Moses how he stood on the federal suffrage amendment he replied, "I have nothing to add to my previous statement. I do not intend to vote for the Susan B. Anthony amendment." They are now satisfied that if they are to be led out of the wilderness, they cannot depend on their Granite State Moses to do it. At that, it may be as well. His leadership abilities haven't so far been visibly astonishing.

The immigration inspectors at Ellis Island, New York, recently announced that if the evader's youngest son, Prince Jouchin, got as far as Ellis Island, showed $50 in money and did not show any signs of insanity or other weakness, he would be allowed to land. We wonder what grade these inspectors believe they have against the government by which they are employed.

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

We understand a number of Lowell people owning motor cars, have received a written request from the Boston Y.M.C.A. celebration committee that they drive to Boston next Friday in time to allow their cars to be used to carry wounded soldiers in the great parade held in Boston on that day. Of course nearly every person thus approached in Lowell is generally found willing to help out in a case like this. There is some surprise that the Boston committee cannot secure cars enough from that big city itself and suburban Boston, but such seems to be the case. The proposition so far as Lowell folks are concerned, involves their driving their cars to Boston Friday morning and starting early enough so that they arrive punctually at 10 a.m. Then the wounded men are taken in subject to the usual delays of course that invariably go with parade preparations. Lowell people have been told that after being given a place in the parade, they would have to drive almost constantly five hours through the Boston streets—the hardest kind of driving. They are expected to furnish their own lunch and will have to eat it as best they can while seated in their car. Presumably the always efficient Red Cross home service organization will see that the wounded doughboys do not go hungry.

First Class Private Patrick J. O'Hearn, son of the well known Lowell contractor, has sent us a copy of the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune. It is very interesting. He also sends a piece of French money, five centimes and a piece of Hun money, a 10 pfennig piece. The German money bears the date 1917 and was made out of a poor quality of aluminum. Among the interesting bits of news contained on the front page of the Paris edition of the Tribune is advanced done on the political situation as regards the choice of the doughboys for president in 1920. The overseas paper says it finds democratic soldiers announce President Wilson suits them well enough so that they want to vote for him again if he will run for president. Their second choice is Mr. McAdoo. The republican soldiers, strangely enough indicate Gen. Woods as their choice with General Pershing running as their second choice.

We feel sure there must have been many quarts of green peas planted Saturday. All Friday forenoon teams enervating plows were to be seen burying towards the outskirts of the city preparatory to making garden plots ready for the workers to start their gardens on the holiday. Of course the early gardener takes many chances. But his hard work merits the best of luck. We all wish that old Jack Frost will not visit the gardens when the buds are breaking through the surface to meet the sunlight.

SEEN AND HEARD

Many kids got their first look at historic Concord bridge and Lexington green.

Not one discordant note is heard in the universal praises of the Salvation Army lass and her noble war work.

Fairies day always marks the opening of summer athletics, baseball particularly, and local diamonds were at a premium Saturday.

The quickest way in the world to earn $50,000, is to fly over to England from some point in the United States—providing you are the first man to accomplish it.

The New Modesty

"The new modesty," said Clarence Underwood, the magazine illustrator, "has a frank quality. It is born of athletic beauty. The old modesty was merely a desire to conceal ugliness.

"A beautiful girl in a white bathing dress came out of the water at Palm Beach the other day and advanced over the sand to her mother.

"Dear me!" the mother whispered. "You shouldn't have got white, darling. That suit is almost transparent."

"The girl smiled calmly.

"Don't worry," she said. "I'm not deformed." —Detroit Free Press.

A Good War Worker

Miss Elsie De Wolfe has been one of the best Red Cross and Liberty bond advocates in New York.

At the Colony club one day a lady came up to Miss De Wolfe and said:

"So sorry my engagements prevent me from attending your Red Cross benefit. However, I'll be with you in spirit."

"Delightful," said Miss De Wolfe. "And where would you like your spirit to sit? In a nice $100 box, or in one of our orchestra seats at only $5?" —Detroit Free Press.

Facing a New Towel

"If there's anything slicker than the surface of an uninitiated face mop, I have not found it. Trying to dry yourself with one of these things is a useless effort. When it comes to absorption it functions about as well as a postoffice blotter."

"Last night I went into the bathroom to wash off a bit of the daily strap-hanging soft and a few shades of somebody's soft coal. All unsuspecting I groped for the towel tact after the splashing process and, tugged a moisture absorber. I put my face into the folds of the alleged towel. I skinned

New Blood Gave Her Energy For Duties of Home

Found Housework a Drudgery Until She Tried the Tonic Treatment

Many men and women are tired all the time. What most of these people need is a tonic that will revitalize the blood.

That tired feeling is one of the symptoms of anemia, and it is generally accompanied by a pallor, palpitation of the heart after walking upstairs, indigestion and sleeplessness.

Mrs. Stephen Murphy, of No. 74 Dartmouth street, Manchester, N. H., might still be suffering as many other men and women are suffering today had she not discovered the right tonic in time. She is anxious therefore that others should share her good fortune. She says:

"Overwork and irregular eating hours undermined my strength and health about three years ago. My stomach was so weak that nearly everything I ate caused severe pain, and there was an almost constant pain in my left side in the region of the heart. I was very weak and could hardly do my work. I was melancholy and worried constantly. At night I rolled and tossed so that what sleep I got did little good.

"A woman who had been benefited by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills one day advised me to try the remedy and I started the treatment. In two weeks time my stomach improved and after I had taken the pills for nine weeks I was completely restored to health.

I sleep soundly now and am rested in the morning. I eat anything I want without discomfort and the pains in my left side have disappeared.

My housework is no longer a drudgery for I do not get tired easily. I have told many of my friends about what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

Your own druggist can supply you with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or you can order direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., enclosing fifty cents for one box or $2.50 for six boxes. Write today for the free booklet "Building Up the Blood." —Adv.

I tried again. No use. I might just as well have tried to dry myself with oiled paper. Casting the bit of temper waster aside, I grabbed another yard of whiteness on the rack. Again failure. The cloth absolutely scorched the water on my brow.

"Then I called in the wife. What? I asked, 'Is the idea of putting these things on the towel rack?' "

"Why, she answered, rather hurt, those are the new ones I worked all day to make. The old ones were all full of holes and I gave them away. I think these are lovely ones."

"Being more or less wise to the rules of domestic peace, Anthony, I said nothing more. One's face will dry without a towel, you know, and mine did. Now I see where I am going to be facing the dry-clean method of toilet the next few days, anyway. New towels are entirely innocent of their purpose in life, are stickier than the retreat side of a pair of old blue serge trousers and as backward about taking to water as a summer girl in a new bathing suit." —Kansas City Star.

Did you have your "ham-and-ester" morning?

Fishing Time

The Spring's setting free my veins: I'm tired of root crops and beans; The cobwebs are clouding up my brains, I long for the great out-of-doors.

A mouthful of keen, salty air, With a taste of the sea would feel good;

In a wild tree from care. O, how I long to be there.

When the flounder comes out of the mud.

It isn't that laziness but

I'm seal on my overworked mind;

I want to get out of the rut.

Necessity's slave drives me,

And its prodding I've patiently stood;

But, I'm longing to be near the sound of the surf.

When the flounder comes out of the mud.

There are plenty of things which annoy

To me strongly the rest of the year;

But in Spring I just hanker to steal

Away from my usual sphere.

To a place where there's no one to care.

How I look, so that any old dog

I am able to wear. O, I've got to be there.

When the flounder comes out of the mud.

WAGONER MARTEL

WELCOMED HOME

When the relatives and friends of Wagoner Joseph Martel read in a recent edition of the Sun of his arrival from overseas and that he was ill, the otherwise joyful nature of the occasion was somewhat dimmed. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Martel, 28 Middlesex park, later received a telegram telling of his safe arrival half an hour previous and were comforted by the statement that he was not seriously ill.

Wagoner Martel saw considerable fighting with Battery F overseas during the 18 months he was "over there." He has been wounded and has had several narrow escapes. He was recently given a formal welcome home party by his friends at his home. Those who took part in the entertainment were: Mrs. Emma LaRock, Miss Mildred Bonneau, Lester Martel, Ralph Peacock, Frank Pearsall, Robert

BOARD! FIRST GONG JINGLES ON LARGEST MUNICIPAL CAR SYSTEM

On Program of "Service Instead of Dividends," Seattle Buys Private Lines for Fifteen
Million--Wage Increase

BY C. A. CLAY

(N.E.A. Staff Correspondent)
SEATTLE, Wash., April 18.—Having just bought a $15,000,000 street railway system, Seattle is today launching out upon the biggest municipal ownership experiment in America.

Experiment—because she must prove to doubters, and to 100,000 owners, that a city can improve on private ownership.

Because she must "make the road pay," yet rejuvenate and modernize a system that collapsed under wartime traffic.

Because she must increase rolling stock to care for the evening crowds, who for months past have waited helplessly for slow-moving, over-crowded cars.

Because she must deal justly with the men on the job—the motormen, conductors, track men, barn men and the others who do the work—and pay them a living wage instead of a pittance.

Because she must guard against the pitfalls of politics.

Seattle officials, from Mayor Ole Hanson down to the humblest clerk, know right well the magnitude of the job, but they're all "geared up" and confident of success.

The public is back of them and pulling strong, believing that nothing could be worse than the service of the last 12 months.

Private System Breakdown

Seattle as far back as 1911 voted an $800,000 bond issue for the purchase of the Rainier Valley line and an extension to Ballard, a suburb. A disagreement between the city council and the Rainier Valley company caused that deal to fall through, but a city line was built to Ballard in 1912 and later extended.

In June, 1918, the proposition to purchase the entire property of the Puget Sound Traction Light & Power company was mentioned. At the end of four months the city council authorized the deal.

This was the result of the demands of the United States government for improved service to shipyards. The car company admitted it was unable to do better, and after long conferences accepted the city's offer of $15,000,000.

In November, the people in an advisory capacity ratified the deal by a vote of four to one, and last month the state supreme court declared the big transaction legal.

Actual transfer of the system was made with some ceremony on March 31, when President A. W. Leonard of the Traction company presented Acting Mayor W. D. Lane the deed to the property. The $15,000,000 was paid in utility bonds to Thomas N. Perkins of Boston, representative of bondholders and the Stone-Webster corporation. The boxes of bonds made an imposing pile.

Seattle is the first city of its size in the world to take over and operate a complete street railway transportation system. Glasgow, London, with many smaller European cities have their trams; New York is spending nearly $200,000,000 on a subway system; various small cities in this country have followed the example set by Monroe, La., 15 years ago; but there appears to be no record of any other city as large as Seattle taking over a complete street car system at one time.

St. Louis has a partial street railway system and San Francisco a system of 13 miles.

Interests of Passengers

The Seattle system is under the general management of Thomas F. Murphine, superintendent of public utilities, who gathered around him, as soon as the deal was a certainty, a staff of experts. The assistant superintendent who will "boss the trolleys" is Dr. W. Henderson, for 17 years in the employ of the old corporation.

Murphine's salary is $4500 a year; Henderson's, $300 a month.

"We have a staff that will get the best results for those who ride on Seattle street cars," says Murphine.

The department of correspondence and intelligence is one of Sept. Murphine's creations. It is designed to represent the public and to act as a buffer.

The heads of other departments might be able to report everything in the condition, but the intelligence department, looking at it from the standpoint of the public, might be able to pick these reports full of flaws. That's what I want to know," explains Murphine.

"There will be an educational division for the purpose of familiarizing the public with measures that ultimately will result in better service.

"It will also be the business of the intelligence department to watch the contracts for the purchase of electric current. The right man on the job ought to save the city nearly $100,000 a year on power alone. Statistics show there is a loss of more than 14 per cent in electric energy through improper use of current. We aim to cut that loss."

Wage Scale Boosted

Murphine estimates the first month's operating expenses at $300,000.

Indicating the city's attitude towards labor, Murphine, in his budget, has called for a wages budget of $200,000 monthly, $7000 more than the traction company was paying.

The scale fixes the pay of car operators at $1.25 per day for the first six months; $1.50 per day for the next six months and $1.75 per day thereafter. The wage scale also applies to barn men and track men. Clerks and stenographers will receive the rate of pay laid down by civil service commission rules.

The property taken over by the city includes 540 cars, 206 miles of track, 81 pieces of real estate, 12 car barns and freight terminals, Madison park and 11 pieces of private right-of-way.

TOO FAT? TRY THIS PLEASANT DEVICE

Fat folks, here is a fine device for taking off surplus adipose. And so well does the maker think of it that he is charged before the federal trade commission with attempting to stifle competition in the field of strangulation of surplus flesh. This little instrument, which from its looks, might be mistaken for a relic of the inquisition, has a set of electrically driven muzzles which literally roll the flesh off from the too-fat. Most generally, it's women that submit to such a treatment.

AUTOMOBILE WRECKED

An automobile owned by Archibald L. Kilvans of Lynn and alleged to have been stolen, was wrecked Saturday night, when it crashed into a stone wall on the state highway between Lowell and Lawrence at a point near the Kenwood station. One of the occupants of the car, Charles Foley, was placed under arrest by Chief of Police Cullinan on a charge of drunkenness and was later turned over to the Lynn police. Kilvans came to this city yesterday and identified what remained of the auto as his property and he stated the car was taken with out his authority. Foley claimed he met a man whose name he could not recall, who had possession of the car and offered to take him and three girls for a ride, and he said he could not remember what happened after that up to the time of his arrest. No one was hurt in the smash up.

PASTOR'S RESIGNATION IS ACCEPTED

Another step was taken in the amalgamation of the Eller and Kirk Street Congregational churches yesterday, when the Eller church accepted the resignation of its pastor, Rev. Herbert A. Barker. The resignation of Rev. William H. Knauth, Jr., will be read and voted upon by the Kirk street pastor at a business meeting to be held this evening. The resignations of both pastors was a part of the union negotiations.

The churches will meet as one under the name of the Eller Union church next Sunday, April 27, when Rev. Mr. Barker will conduct the service. At the service on the following Sunday, May 4, Rev. Mr. English will preach, and both ministers will conduct the communion service. The organizations of both churches will terminate this week and new officers, committees and deacons will be elected at a business meeting to take place after the first union service.

Rev. Mr. Barker will leave Lowell soon to assume a pastorate at Randolph, Vt., but Rev. Mr. English has no definite plans as yet. The Eller church was particularly well filled at the Easter service yesterday morning and an overflow congregation is assured for next Sunday.

DOINGS OF THE SCREEN ARTISTS

Never knew before that Ruth Roehl was a sleep-walker. She got up in the night a few weeks ago and put her jewels in the pockets of her pajamas. Discovering her jewel case empty in the morning she sent in a wild alarm to the fire department and everything only to have the laundry maid appear with the bag of jewels. What's good for sleep-walking besides staying up all night?

The big rattlesnake which has an important role in Stewart Edward White's novel, "The Westerner," now being filmed by the Great Authors Pictures, Inc., caused considerable excitement when he appeared for his first scene. His fangs were supposed to have been removed, but oh, boy, they forgot one. This lone fang was discovered just after friend snake had been tethered to a peg about four inches from the leg of Graham Pettie who plays Prof. Welch. When the professor saw the fang he multiplied the four inch distance by one hundred in what you might call lightning calculation.

Muriel Ostriche made so many personal appearances recently that she got all "tuckered" out, so she has gone away to Atlantic City to recuperate. Her record was four appearances in one day, which is sure going some, we'll say.

Mabel Normand gave the studio nurse's job the other day untangling her eyelashes. If you see your eyes the way you do, Mabel, what can you expect?

José J. Dowling, who has delighted more picture fans than almost any other character actor on the screen, has a good part in the all-star cast

Maxine Elliott, whose beauty and skill as an actress have delighted two continents, has gone into pictures, and has posed before the camera as one of the leading characters in "The Eternal Magdalene." This powerful play, it will be remembered, was played throughout New England a few seasons ago, and created a profound impression. In picture form it is said to be even more impressive. "The Eternal Magdalene" will probably have a local appearance soon.

The untimely death of Sydney Drew will cause national regret among the theatre-goers and movie fans alike. He was an artist on both the speaking and the silent stage, for he had a keen comedy sense, both in voice and facial play. Off the stage Mr. Drew was a genial gentleman and his friends were legion. He will be sadly missed.

STATUS OF THE FORTY-EIGHT HOUR LAW

Special to the Sun
STATE HOUSE, Boston, April 21.—Unless the initiative and referendum is revoked by employers in order to delay its operation, the 48-hour law for women and children will become effective in Massachusetts on Thursday, July 17.

Governor Coolidge signed the bill at 1:27 Friday afternoon, and under the provisions of the constitution it will become effective in 90 days. If the employers desire to delay its operation, however, they have only to obtain a few thousand names on petitions asking that the matter be referred to the people at the November election for their acceptance or rejection, and in that event it cannot take effect until about the first of December.

In signing the bill the governor used five quills. One of these will be given to Senator John Halliwell of New Bedford, on whose petition the bill was passed; another will go to Representative Michael F. Malone of Worcester, who proved the leading democratic worker for the passage of the bill; a third will be given to James Tunney of Fall River, who is the head of the weavers' organization, and the others will go to representatives of the American Federation of Labor and of the Women's Trade Union League.

LANDING OF PILGRIMS

Mayor Thompson has been requested by John A. Stewart, chairman of the Governor's committee in charge of the tercentenary celebration of the landing of the Pilgrim fathers, to appoint a committee of 20 to assist in the work. Detailed plans for the observance will be forwarded to the mayor later, according to a communication received this morning.

It was easy enough to care for all the men during the daylight hours but when the sleeping hours began the troubles of the association workers increased accordingly. In addition to beds, cots and couches, chairs and even pool tables were pressed into service and many a Y.M.C.A. boy sank to slumber with his head in the left-hand corner pocket.

Y.M.C.A. ENTERTAINS SERVICE MEN

More than a thousand service men enjoyed the hospitality of the Lowell Y.M.C.A. on Saturday when every available nook and cranny was requisitioned for sleeping quarters and entertainment was continuous from 4 to 10 o'clock. Luncheon was served and everything possible done for the comfort of the soldiers and sailors. The entertainment was in charge of Miss E. B. Blinsteil, leader of a group of war camp entertainers, with the Misses Grace, Lillian and Anna Irkland, mandolin, banjo and piano players. Savage's jazz band was also on deck with compelling music, thus making the program practically continuous.

It was easy enough to care for all the men during the daylight hours but when the sleeping hours began the troubles of the association workers increased accordingly. In addition to beds, cots and couches, chairs and even pool tables were pressed into service and many a Y.M.C.A. boy sank to slumber with his head in the left-hand corner pocket.

Aviator Reads Wilson's Speech to Crowd

WASHINGTON, April 21.—From an airplane flying 2600 feet over head, an army officer today read President Wilson's Victory Liberty loan speech to a throng of 15,000 persons assembled at the south steps of the treasury, by the use of the wireless telephone and a newly invented sound amplifier. Rear Admiral Sims, from the platform, addressed the same audience through the amplifier. He praised the work of the American army in France, saying the navy was really an auxiliary of the army.

The throng of government employees cheered the president's message as enunciated distinctly to them by Lieut. H. E. Metcalf in the airplane.

"Hello, hello, treasury," cried the aviator. "I am now 2600 feet over you in plane 38070 from Boiling field." He then read the message and concluded by bidding good-bye to the crowd good naturally.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

Below is what the press agents of the different theatres say of the current attractions and of others to come.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE

The show that will be dispensed at the B. F. Keith theatre this week in the big laughing success, "In a Pest House," will truly be of the infectious variety. Those troopers of comedy, Imhoff, Conn and Coreene will present this act, than which there is no greater comedy on the boards. Roget Imhoff will be back as the old Irish horse trader who is forced into a wifeside inn for the night. He is tired and wants and expects rest. But he doesn't get it. A trained nurse, Constantine, comes along upon masking a minute and going into the trader's room to administer medicine to him. The porter at the house has a mania for checkers and imagines that he is a general. Here, again, are found reasons for keeping the old man awake, and the result is that he squalls fitfully now and again. Laterally this inn is a pest house for the trader. Here is an act that is gauged at the very limit of fun all of the time. It is clean as a whistle and everybody will like it.

A darling of the Paris music halls is Juliette Dika, the woman who had kings and princes attendant on her when she essayed appearance in some of the greatest revues of the day. Juliette Dika has been in the United States for several years now, and she has been a reigning favorite whether she appeared in musical pieces or in vaudeville. She now is giving her inimitable vocal and musical sense of the wonderful art of Yvette Guilbert. She is a singer of no mean ability and to look upon her typifies the chivalry of Paris, about whom we hear so much, but who doesn't get to our shores often.

Wilson Bros., in the "Lieutenant and the Traffic Cop," are a pair of comedians who rely upon quick wit to provide an incessant flow of patter. It always has been a point and every much in to a point.

One of the prettiest, neatest of musical pieces is "A Brittany Romance," which Lee and Cranston will present. They are delicate musical numbers, which were written especially for this piece, and the twins are decidedly graceful dancers. The act is one of high grade all the way. Masters and Kraft will give a satire on the song and dance men yesterday, today and tomorrow. It is brimming over with novelties, and another act of drawing power will be the skatorial turn of Athos and Read. The Nakae Japs are jiu-jitsu performers. In addition there will be the Kinograms and a comedy sketch at every performance.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE
There's real merit to the bill. "Daddy Long Legs" adapted from the famous novel by the same name, produced by Henry Miller, will be the continuing Tuesday and Wednesday coming week's offering by the Emerson Players at the Lowell Opera House.

This is the play in which Ruth Chatterton scored her greatest stage triumph, and the same piece that shared with the Broadway successes that New York has known in many seasons. After filling a long engagement at the metropolis it toured the country and was played Boston several months.

The piece is in four parts and is a delightful comedy drama that deals with a present-day story in which matroses are the main ingredients pleasantly, while the engaging characters are the kind drawn from real life and are not called upon to accomplish the impossible.

In the story of an orphan girl who is befriended by a person whom she has never seen, as well as "Daddy Long Legs" from the fact that she sees only the shadow of his legs on the wall of the orphanage where she is stationed. Later she is taken from the institution and sent to college and eventually grows into womanhood after ten years of training with her benefactor.

The last part of the story is the biggest presented by the Emerson Players, and the cost of the production, the most expensive of the season.

The soloist for the week is Joseph Philibert, and he is a wonderfully good bass voice. He has appeared with Constantine and other well-known opera stars, and expects to return to the operatic stage soon. This is the first time he has appeared in America, and he is to add more to the Universal Weekly will help give sufficient variety in the program to meet the tastes of all.

Theda Bara, who is to be featured during the last three days of the week in "When Men Desire," is a good actress in her new success when this picture is shown. Ultra-modern love making is done in aeroplanes.

"The Rebels' Bride," in which Peggy Hyland is featured, is a story built around a chance marriage, the contracting parties being utterstrangers to each other. They are induced to offer up to the very last minute. Watch for the other "good things" that have been booked for the remainder of the season.

HELD OPEN HOUSE
The C.M.A.C. in Paynacket street held open house Saturday for the returned soldiers and as a result several hundred boys in uniform called during the day and enjoyed themselves to the many amusements provided in the well appointed quarters.

Members of the association were on hand all day and they saw that the visitors were well entertained.

THE 25TH OF APRIL
NOT A HOLIDAY

Special to the Sun

STATE HOUSE, Boston, April 21.—Governor Calvin Coolidge, who several days ago announced that he would not proclaim April 25th a legal holiday, has issued a proclamation calling upon the people of the commonwealth to observe the day as they wish, by the voluntary permission to cease such ordinary activities as would interfere with the celebration of the day in honor of the 26th Division, "to the end that every loyal citizen may pay a deserved tribute alike to the living and the dead."

ST. GEORGE—Antoine St. George, a woodman, who had been missing from his home for nearly two weeks, was found dead in his camp at Royal Rock, Tyngsboro, near Mountain Rock, yesterday by one of his daughters. Dr. T. B. Smith, the medical examiner, has been notified. Death occurred at 200 Perkins street, left home April 8, and his family believed he had gone into the woods, as usual, to gather money. Yesterday, however, one of his daughters went to their camp on an errand and found her father lying there. There was nothing to indicate how long the man had been dead. He leaves his wife, two sons, Antoine and Noe, three daughters, Eliot, Alden and Diana; one brother, John, and one sister, Mrs. Delta Desroches.

DOHERTY—Charles Patrick Doherty died Saturday at the home of his brother, John Doherty, in Peabody. He leaves his husband, John Doherty; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Doherty, and one brother, John Doherty. She was a well known attendant of the Sacred Heart church.

Local Telephone Operators Back at Their Switch Boards

Striking Operators and Wiremen Returned to Work at 7 O'Clock This Morning—New Wage Scale To Be Announced Tomorrow

Lowell's telephone service, owing back to its normal and active basis to-day when the 125 striking operators and 65 wiremen engaged with the local exchange, returned to work at 7 a.m. The strike was officially declared off at a late hour last night on the return to the city from the Boston conference of the representatives of the local unions—Miss Helen Moran and Thomas Delaney, and their arrival with the good tidings was greeted with resounding cheers by the members of both unions meeting in joint session in Lincoln Hall.

The strikers on returning to work came victory, and it seems justified, but the terms of the new wage scale will not be made public until to-morrow. Continued to Page Four

Agreement Ending Strike Ratified—Phone Operators Return to Work

Telephone Service, Paralyzed in New England Since Last Tuesday, Resumed This Morning—Operators To Get $19 Per Week

BOSTON, April 21.—The agreement reached by the committee of striking telephone operators with officials of the New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the Providence Telephone Co. yesterday, was ratified at a mass meeting of the strikers today and all union members were ordered to report for work at their switchboards at 5 o'clock this afternoon.

Telephone service here and in other cities and towns affected by the strike of operators and electrical workers of the New England Telephone & Telegraph and Providence Telephone companies, was resumed in part early today. Wherever available on short notice, the day operators began their duties at the regular hours, 7 or 8 a.m., after being notified of the settlement of the strike which started last Tuesday.

Although the operators and allied workers did not receive the full amount of their wage demands, most of them appeared pleased with the results obtained especially the winning of the right of collective bargaining.

Others expressed dissatisfaction with the failure of the committee to obtain the full amount of the demands and said they would not return to work until they had considered the situation carefully at a mass meeting today.

TERMS OF AGREEMENT

The details of the strike settlement will not be available until tomorrow when the strike committee and company officials draw up the final terms. By the agreement reached last night operators in Boston will receive $19 a week after seven years of service and a minimum wage of $16, instead of $8. They demanded $22 at the end of four years. The new scale will retroactive to January 1. The men in the metropolitan district will receive an increase of 50 cents a day, retroactive to March 1, while those outside will receive a flat increase of 62½ cents a day. They had asked for increases ranging from $1.10 to $1.60 a day.

KNOX MEMORIAL IN BOSTON

First Assistant Postmaster General John C. Knox, delegated by Postmaster General Burleson to approve the agreements reached here will remain in the city until Wednesday to give official approval to the final settlement.

The agreement reached last night virtually ended a six day strike that has paralyzed the telephone service in all New England territory except Connecticut.

It was estimated that the increases granted the operators will cost the companies more than $500,000 yearly with more than $1,000,000 additional for allied electrical workers.

DISCUSS MAKING TREATY PUBLIC

BOSTON, April 21.—(By the Associated Press)—The council of five in the interval before the peace treaty is handed to the German delegates, will take up the question of making the document public. Ray Stannard Baker, representing the American delegation in agreement with the press advisers to the delegations of other countries has recommended to the council the publication of the treaty immediately after its delivery to the Germans. Otherwise, it is pointed out, the first version of the important provisions of the treaty would be seized by the Germans and might be picked up with German propaganda.

The plan proposed on behalf of the United States is for the American delegates to call for simultaneous distribution in the American continents, first a 250 word official summary of the treaty second, a 500 word official summary and, third, the text of the treaty.

FIRE ALARMS

At 1:05 o'clock this afternoon a telephone alarm was sent in for a brush fire in Parker Avenue, but when the firemen reached the place they found that a resident of the street, who had obtained a permit from the chief of the fire department, was burning brush on his land. At 2:30 o'clock a still alarm was sent in for a slight cotton waste fire on the tracks of the Boston & Maine in Warren Street. No damage.

RENSON DECORATED

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Admiral Benson, chief of naval operations has been awarded the Navy Distinguished Service Medal by direction of President Wilson.

WATERING CARS AND CARTS

The watering cars and carts of the street sprinkling department have started on their seasonal work and today the downtown streets were wet down at frequent intervals. Two carts and four carts are in operation. Street cleaning will be started in the immediate future.

News of the Churches

Happy and joyous was the observance of Easter, 1919, in the churches of the city yesterday. The unique significance of the great day this year in view of the dawn of peace and safe return of many soldiers and sailors was faithfully interpreted in the elaborate musical programs carried out in Catholic and Protestant churches alike. The excellent weather of the forenoon lent a tinge of brightness to the entire observance and the church interiors were veritable reflections of the brightness and cheer without. Floral decorations were in constant abundance on the church altars with the single omission of the Easter lily. The lily was seen only on rare occasions and was unusually scarce. Nevertheless, ingenious decorators assembled other blossoms which gave the various houses of worship added beauty.

In the Catholic churches, especially, was the marked contrast between the somberness of the Lenten season and the joyousness of the resurrection brought out. In both Catholic and Protestant churches the musical programs were most elaborate. St. Peter's

At the 7:30 o'clock mass at St. Peter's church yesterday members of the Married Ladies' sodality received communion in a body. Rev. Daniel J. Heffernan was the celebrant and Rev. Daniel J. Kelcher, Ph.D., assisted in giving communion. Rev. George Quinn, O.M.I., celebrated the solemn high mass at 11 o'clock and he was assisted by Rev. Fr. Heffernan as deacon and Rev. Francis L. Shea as sub-deacon. The pastor spoke on the significance of Easter Sunday. The church choir, under the direction of Key, Peter Linehan, gave a most excellent musical program, both at the high mass and the vesper service in the evening.

Sacred Heart

Rev. P. J. Phelan, O.M.I., sang the solemn high mass at the Sacred Heart church yesterday and Rev. James McDermott, O.M.I., assisted as deacon and Rev. William Mahan, O.M.I., as sub-deacon. Rev. John P. Flynn, O.M.I., the pastor, was the preacher and Joseph Jennings was master of ceremonies. John J. Kelly was in charge of the musical program and it was of the same high quality as in previous years. The regular church choir united forces with the sanctuary choir of 30 voices and the soloists were Miss Katherine Sharkey, Miss Elizabeth Finnegan, John McMahon and George Kerwin. Mr. Kelly was at the organ. Vesper services were held at 6:30 and again an elaborate musical program was carried out. Members of the Holy Angels' sodality received communion at the 8:30 o'clock mass. Rev. Fr. Mahan, O.M.I., was celebrant and the pastor assisted in giving communion. Announcement was made that on Sunday evening, May 4, a sacred concert will be given at this church and will include talent from all parts of the city. Various improvements have been made on the church organ and the coming concert is looked forward to with much anticipation.

McCarron, O.M.I., was the celebrant and Rev. Denis A. Sullivan, O.M.I., assisted in giving communion. The solemn high mass at 11 o'clock was celebrated by Rev. Albert L. McDermott, O.M.I., of Buffalo, N.Y. He was assisted by Rev. Owen P. McQuaid, O.M.I., as deacon and Rev. James E. McCarron, O.M.I., as sub-deacon. The pastor, Rev. Lawrence F. Tighe, O.M.I., preached the sermon and made the announcements. The church choir, directed by William L. Gootkin and assisted by the sanctuary choir, gave an excellent program of Easter music both at the high mass and at the vesper service in the evening. The soloists were Miss Vera Moody, Miss Lena McQuaid, Miss Katherine McCaffrey, Miss E. Murningham, James King, William O'Connell and D. P. Martin. Mrs. Hugh Walker was organist.

CUT THIS OUT

OLD ENGLISH RECIPE FOR CATARRHAL CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOSES

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises or ordinary catarrh, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. In England scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the lungs, which is equally as dangerous. The following formula, which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climatic conditions.

Take four eggs from your druggist, 1 ounce of Parmentier's double strength. Take this home and add to it 1/2 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will afford quick relief from distressing earache. Take four eggs from your druggist, 1 ounce of Parmentier's double strength. Take this home and add to it 1/2 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will afford quick relief from distressing earache. The following formula, which is used extensively in the damp English climate is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers here who live under more favorable climatic conditions.

As Viewed By Argus

The first stage of the great debate over. But on consideration it becomes the case of the last war. As for the League and its members of the old school, we hear but the apparent that a League of Nations mandates. United States cannot echo and re-echoes of the old school, the establishment of certain responsibilities and mandates between nations in which abilities for conditions we helped to almost end in their names and in the exception of national identity is created; and no result of the war is the measure of their importance. On the basic, the existence of nations distinct to us. These four objections in one side was a comprehensive analysis made from each other is fundamental reference to nationalism, tradition, relations against the protection to the very idea of a league. The country does not undertake to merge all of a similar strain, were inspired by history—the everlasting devastation of the nations. The individual nations being the component elements of the absorption in local interests and a corresponding indifference to the fortunes of the rest of the world.

Political Questions

Three questions of political nature arose, very much allied in character to those just discussed. The most important is the Monroe Doctrine. This national policy, according to the view of many, has not been threatened. And procedure hostile to the doctrine would be hostile to the whole league. Moreover, many believe that we can be neither a universal agreement as to what we are, nevertheless, confronted with nor of the future maintain the doctrine. It is quite certain now, however, that the Monroe Doctrine will be included in the revised draft and thus eliminates the question as an element in the discussion. Tariff and immigration, strictly domestic problems, if included within the scope, were urged as objections to the covenant. The whole tenor of the instrument, however, does not permit of the inclusion of domestic concerns within the purview of the league, and since it is against the aims of all nations to subject such matters to league regulation, it is not reasonable to assume that problems relating to American affairs would be an exception. Rebellion against the participation of Europe in the settlement of American affairs of whatever nature, brings up considerations similar to those in reference to the Monroe Doctrine. As we may need European assistance to enforce the doctrine, so we may welcome assistance in the solution of other difficulties which may arise. Moreover, since the Monroe Doctrine is left inviolate, America is safe from prejudiced dealing of Europe in American affairs.

By Senator Knox the over-rigidity of boundaries enforced by article 10, as advanced by Judge Hughes, and the danger of increasing wars through the obligation to participate in all difficulties everywhere, brought forward by Senator Lodge. Mr. Root's criticisms, aside from the Monroe Doctrine, are not identical to the spirit of the original draft and cannot be considered as arguments against adoption. Of these objections the question of the relative number of votes, the question of withdrawal and the form of the draft will be obviated by the changes already announced. If the Monroe Doctrine will exclude purely American matters, only European problems will come up for decision, and if in such cases we have one vote in nine, it is likely that our vote as well as our influence, as it is now at the peace conference, will be the decisive factor. The fears of Senator Knox as to the possibility of a double league are not justified. Germany's exclusion is temporary. She will be able to come in on an equality with other nations. Her desire to rehabilitate her tortures and to reinstate herself among the nations organized offensively and defensively against any war, will dispose her to seek grace rather than glory. Her commerce will dictate amenability. Russia, though Bolshevik, is not militaristic; and after the scourge of Bolshevism is past, she will not be able to withstand singly the organized moral forces of the world behind the League of Nations.

Judge Hughes' objection is not consistent with itself. Article 10 guarantees territorial integrity against external aggression. If prohibition of external aggression means rigidity of boundaries, then boundaries can be made flexible only by war. If that is the case, Judge Hughes is an advocate of militarism: then why undertake to discuss the details of a League of Nations? The most prolific source of war came from external aggression, and article 10 is a provision against war springing from that source again. The provision does not preclude the shifting of boundaries or the changing of internal relations through rebellion or by political pressure. Senator Lodge's uneasiness is altogether fanciful. That an engagement to prevent war everywhere will therefore cause war everywhere is a use of logic almost inconceivable. It may mean war anywhere—that may be true without a tangent—but not everywhere; more likely it will be war nowhere.

Legal Objections

The remaining objections are technical, sociological and partisan. Among the technical objections is the question of one vote in nine, the question of withdrawal, the form of the draft, the possibilities of a double league urged

I happened to pick up one of Foley's Honey and Tar. Almonds and anise seed and a bottle of Foley's Honey and Tar. MRS. DOOLEY'S ADVICE TO WORKING GIRLS

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I wish all girls who work and suffer from functional disorders would profit by my advice and take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Before I was married, when I came home from work at night, I would be just worn out with pains which dragged me down. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I made me feel like a new woman. I can work from morning until night and it does not bother me, and I wish all girls who suffer as I did would try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound." —Mrs. H. Dooley, 125 25th Street, Milwaukee, Wis.

Working girls everywhere should profit by Mrs. Dooley's experience, and instead of dragging along from day to day with life a burden, give this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. It has overcome just such conditions for thousands of others, and why not for you?

The letters constantly being published from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Sociological Obstacles

The sociological objections come from ignorance and cynicism. It is asserted that human nature will always bring on wars; and that man, as evidenced by his endless failures, is constitutionally incapable of devising a plan to prevent war. The first consideration can be applied with equal force to all society. Individuals are as belligerent as nations and yet we maintain a comparatively peaceful and secure existence in society. We have established machinery for peaceful settlement in social life and we have something approaching peace; and if we organize machinery for the peaceful settlement of international affairs, we will have something approaching international peace. As for our past failures, they have been creatures of their creators. Learned authors have been made in the name of the people but not for the people. We are forcing a league of democracies for

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. Do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

WHY SALVATION ARMY USES TAMBOURINE

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children
In Use For Over 30 Years

The redemption of the tambourine by the Salvation Army is a real thriller which requires a journey into many lands, lasting over many centuries to review properly.

In the older days, the tambourine was a goodly instrument, but it fell into the hands of the unrighteous and for centuries was used chiefly as a target for dancers who aimed high.

Romance, sparkling and mysterious, hovers about the tambourine. Its tinging, fascinating sounds speak of the dance hall, of triviality, of mystery, allurement and destruction. The Salvation Army remembered its biblical existence and brought back to the companionship of the redeemed.

Most persons think of the tambourine as something to be held far above the heads of slumped ladies, to be hit ever and anon by an upcoming foot, but the Salvation Army remembered that way back in the days of Moses, Miriam, the sister of Moses, played the tambourine on the shore of the Red sea, while Moses was leading his people safely over, and accordingly restored it to respectability.

Forty years ago when the Salvation Army was being reviled and persecuted for going into highways and byways to preach Christianity, it decided that an audience collector was essential. Harking back to Moses and Miriam, the Salvationists drafted the tambourine for service.

S. W. Fry of the famous Fry family of Salvationists, a writer of hymns which are now printed in most of the Protestant hymnals of this country, organized Cymbrell bands, when Salvation lasses went through artistic motions to accompany the music.

About twenty years ago the tambourine was converted into a collection box. It came about this way. One night when the tambourines were ringing and the crowd was worked up to a fever heat, the Salvationist in charge of the street meeting, inspired by the occasion, called out:

"Now's the time, lasses, pass round your tambourines."

The result was astonishing. The tambourines were filled to overflowing. The new fashion in collection boxes had come to stay.

In many lands small drums are designated as tambourine, but the tambourine which the Salvation Army made famous, consists of a wooden hoop, on one side a velvet head, the other side open. Small rods with

BLIND AND ARMLESS MAN WRITES LETTER

NEW YORK, April 21.—The first letter ever written by one blind soldier without hands to another similarly crippled and afflicted has just been received by an American soldier in a New York hospital. It was a message of good cheer written by Alan H. Nichols, of London, a British soldier, to show his American comrade and fellow sufferer that "a man's a man for a' that."

A copy of the letter and of another dictated by the sightless and handless British soldier have been received by The Associated Press from Sir Arthur Pearson, newspaper publisher and president of the British National Institute for the Blind, of London, England.

One letter was written by Nichols with artificial hands on a specially constructed typewriter keyboard. Its purpose was to encourage all war cripples and to show them that no matter how terribly handicapped they might be, they could rise above their deprivations and conquer the giant despair. This blind but cheerful and happy Tommy Atkins informed his Yankee fellow in affliction that he was still able to dance, swim, ride horseback, play dominoes (with his nose), feed himself, carry a cane, take his handkerchief from his pocket, and do almost everything a man with two legs and two hands could do except roll his own cigarettes, and strike a match. He uses a taper.

Sir Arthur, in a note accompanying the missive, said he supposed it was the first case on record where a man suffering the tremendously severe handicap of blindness and the loss of both hands had been able to write, unaided, to anyone. The original letter, he said, was sent by Nichols from the Blinded Soldiers' and Sailors' Institute, known as St. Dunstan's, to the wounded American soldier whom the London publisher had seen in a New York hospital.

Here is what is believed to be the first letter ever written by a blind man without hands:

3 New Street,
St. John's Wood, N.W.
March 17, 1919.

Dear Mr. _____: Enclosed you will find a rather lengthy letter which I dictated for you, but I am tying that one myself to convince you that this is practicable.

I understand from Sir Arthur Pearson that you are free from other physical disabilities and in this respect you are more fortunate than I.

In September, 1916, I received my left shoulder and arm, still have quite a number of pieces of shrapnel in my chest and legs which cause me no little annoyance at times.

In September, 1917, an operation was necessary to remove some of the shrapnel from my chest and three weeks later another equally serious one—the removal of portions of ribs and still more pieces of foreign matter.

At Brighton where I was sent to one of St. Dunstan's annexes I soon found myself getting fit and it was during a conversation that Sir Arthur arranged for me to take lessons in tailoring which enables me to earn my own livelihood.

My work is most interesting and consists of speaking on the work of St. Dunstan's and the National Institute for the Blinded and disabled.

At last, when I tell you that in addition to this I control and organize the lantern slide department which is the advertising medium of the N.I.B. and St. Dunstan's,

In conclusion permit me to express the hope that you have not given up the idea of ever doing anything when I feel sure there is so much for you to do.

"Yours sincerely,

"ALAN M. NICHOLS."

In his dictated letter Nichols assured his American fellow cripple: "When you are fit and well and able to run about you will find there is still plenty in life worth living for. When I first became like this," he continued, "I could not see anything that was likely to interest me on this earth. I was inclined to think I was the most unfortunate person on earth. In short I was often contemplating a method of quitting this life. At that time I never dreamed of the possibilities of a pair of artificial hands and I can assure you that I now surprise everybody, but the one I surprise most is myself.

"I can take off my hat, carry a walking stick and attach case and feed myself with a spoon and fork. I have a specially made cigarette case similar in appearance to a metal match box which fits in my waistcoat pocket. I can take this from my pocket and help myself to a cigarette. I have not yet accomplished the feat of striking a match but this is overcome by having what we call on this side spills—strips of paper a foot in length. There are a hundred and one little things I can do, such as using my handkerchief and this includes taking it from my pocket.

Encouraging the American to write his own letters, Nichols said that he used an ordinary typewriter with a metal case over the keyboard, having holes immediately above each key. The case resembles four steps and in the middle of each step is a rim to let me know when I am central. Attached to my hand I have a key or striker which resembles a small hammer. This takes me about half an hour for one sheet of foolscap double-spacing but of course this will improve by practice."

Nichols advised the unnamed American to carry a soldier-like appearance and to swing his arms, walk in the center of the sidewalk and avoid lampposts but not to carry a cane. Swedish drill, swimming and dancing were advised for recreation. "When playing dominoes," Nichols added, "I use my nose to feel although this has the tendency to give one the appearance of a chronic sufferer from indigestion or a slave to the bottle."

Telling of his amusing experiences in traveling, Nichols wrote, "I take considerable satisfaction in the fact that I am able to deceive 99 per cent of the people I meet.

"I am wearing a pair of artificial hands which are quite useful," Nichols went on. "They are made of aluminum and I can wear them all day without the least fatigue or discomfort. They are of French manu-

EASTER MUSIC IN LOCAL PROTESTANT CHURCHES

There was a deep significance to the Easter music in the churches yesterday, a communion of the spirit of victory with a blending of sorrow when the public mind visualized the graves of our soldier boys in France and Flanders. This Easter was in striking contrast with the two previous Easters. Two years ago President Wilson's proclamation, declaring the state of war existed between the United States and Germany, was two days old, and last year Yankees had just been promised by Secretary Baker that they would have their opportunity to go to the rescue of the French and British and help stop the German drive towards Paris. Everybody was anxious then, but the Prussian war machine finally triumphed and Easter this year made a glorious celebration by church and soldiers. Yet the beautiful story of the resurrection was the only consolation for many sad hearts.

LOWELL WINS PENNANT BENNY VALGER WINS

Landed Championship by Beating Salem and Worcester on Holiday

Capt. Freddie Harkins for the second time in two consecutive years led his Lowell polo team to the championship by landing two games on the holiday. Salem was defeated on Saturday afternoon by the score of 6 to 5 in the overtime game, and Worcester was turned back in the evening by the score of 8 to 5.

By winning two games away from home the Lowell team demonstrated its ability to come through in the big game and vindicated the claim advanced all season that the team was its best when under fire. The victory at Salem in the afternoon came after one of the most strenuously fought games of the season. Both teams were tired when play started and the ball was kicked in the doors with roosters and well-wishers of the "Witches."

This fact never bothered the champs for they went into the game determined to win. After battling fiercely for 45 minutes the ball was stopped in play after 32 seconds of whirlwind overtime play. Capt. Harkins, the brilliant and braying leader of the Lowell team, who ever since joining the Lowell spanzies has been a tower of strength to the team, came through with the goal that settled the game and practically settled pennant possession.

Jumping over to Worcester at night, the team still had a fight on to make the championship certain. Salem had a night game at Providence, and if Salem had won, Lowell lost the teams would match strengths again to dispel all chances of a tie, and though the players were tired after the afternoon game, they went at it hammer and tongs and emerged from the struggle on top. Meanwhile Salem was beaten at Providence, and Lowell won the championship by full game.

The race just ended, Lowell got away so fast owing to the fact that Capt. Harkins held to his original lineup while other teams were adding strength. Finally when the going got too hot and the pressure was on, he showed the way. Capt. Harkins signed up Bob Hart and Pence. Just as soon as these players got their bearings the team went forward, and while Salem threatened by a remarkable garrison finish Lowell would not be denied.

The team of Hart, Pence, and Harkins, led by Capt. Harkins, was winning 6 to 1. Capt. Harkins one of the greatest polo players to ever put on a skate. He is not only a brilliant individual player, but without doubt the best feeder in the game. With Hart as a commander on the field he performed equal magnificence that year, and to top it Hart showed wonderful form in taking the passes and also showed the way to all competitors in cross fire driving. Hart had a very successful year and though starting late he was right up with the leaders in goal scoring. Hart, at center goal, was a very important cog in the championing machine. He starred on both defense and offense, and his great playing did much in landing the title for Lowell.

At last Asquith, playing his first year as a professional developed into a real star. He and Pence played brilliantly at all times, and did a great deal to help his team to cover the top. He's a class act, captain, and the fact that the men up front had confidence in his ability at all times gave them an opportunity to do more than ever before in the department.

Lowell had a real championship outfit, and we take great pleasure in congratulating Capt. Harkins and his entire team, on their remarkable achievement and the high class polo they gave us last season.

The progress of the league was due in large measure to the efficient direction of President Fred Moore, owner of the Lowell team, and head of the league. To his splendid executive ability is due the completion of a season that in the country has no parallel, turned out to be one of the most progressive and successful in the history of eastern polo.

ELMIRA'S ALL GIRLS SHOW THURSDAY

LOWELL ALL STARS BEAT Y.D. MEN

The Elmira club, which has established an enviable reputation in local concert circles, will present an entertainment in Associate Hall on Thursday evening, which promises to surpass all previous endeavors. The program has been carefully arranged and rehearsed under the efficient direction of Charles D. Shattuck, one of Lowell's most prominent musical directors. Mr. Shattuck has had wide experience in the management and presentation of concert programs, and in securing him to direct the coming show the Elmira made a ten strike. An "all girls" show was desired upon and in securing the ladies to appear, the management "signed up" many of the most noted in the city. They have been assigned splendid numbers and expect to be at their best in the coming entertainment. There will be a chorus of 70 voices. George Sault will preside at the piano.

Review of 26th Tomorrow

CAMP DEVENS, April 21.—The last details of the final review of the 26th Division on Tuesday have been completed and field orders No. 8, issued yesterday, announce in detail the orders and plans for the review, which will be made the biggest military ceremony ever held in New England since the entry of the United States into the world war.

According to the official order the actual review will start at 3 o'clock, but it will be preceded at 2 o'clock by the award of battle streamers to regimental and battalion colors, and of decorations to officers and enlisted men, the entire Yankee Division constituting the escort for this ceremony.

German Maneuver To Gain Time

PARIS, April 21.—Today's newspapers see in Germany's sending "envoys" instead of delegates of proper standing to Versailles, nothing but evidence of bad faith and a transparent maneuver to gain time.

The Echo de Paris says the associated governments are determined not to accept subordinate personages.

According to the Havas agency, surprise has been manifested over the fact that Germany did not select more important men for her peace delegation than Minister Von Haniel, Herr Von Keller, Ernst Schmidt, Herr Reinker and Herr Luders. According to a German note, they will have power only to receive the text of the terms and not to sign the treaty.

It is declared that in these circumstances, the sending of these delegates to Versailles would be useless.

"Practice What You Preach" For Loan

BOSTON, April 21.—A "practice what you preach" parade, headed by Gov. Coolidge and Mayor Andrew J. Peters and participated in by members of the Liberty loan committee and hundreds of workers, opened the Victory loan drive here today. The line was formed at the State House and passed down Park street to "Liberty court" on the common, where the marchers made good their slogan and bought bonds at Liberty cottage.

Loan Campaign at Chicago

CHICAGO, April 21.—Between midnight and 3 o'clock this morning, thousands of people in Grant park, on the lake front, sang and cheered, opening the Victory loan campaign. Big guns were fired near the lake, whistles blew, bells were rung and Michigan avenue was illuminated. The campaign started with more than $12,000,000 in subscriptions.

Two Mail Aviators Burned to Death

PARIS, Sunday, April 20.—An airship carrying mail from Strassburg to Paris, fell today near St. Didier. Two of the crew were burned to death and a third was seriously injured. The mail matter carried by the airship was destroyed.

In the semi-final Frank Mollins of Lowell won from Jack Marshall of Lawrence on the O. route in five rounds. Mollins gave a splendid exhibition, despite the fact that his opponent had a weight advantage.

In the preliminaries Bill Murphy won the decision over Al Diamond after six lively rounds and Young Neary won over Young Smith in two rounds.

Jimmy Gardner, formerly of Lowell and in his day one of the best boxers in the country at his weight, was presented to the members and he received an ovation. Red Dunn of Brooklyn, Al Neary went to eliminate Rivel and the latter accepted the defy.

It was announced that Al Shuster of New Bedford will appear at the next meeting on Thursday evening against "Louisiana" or some other big class opponent.

PROBABLE REFEREE FOR THE BIG FIGHT ALREADY IS IN TRAINING

When the heavyweight title is dragged forth from cold storage and thrown into the ring as the place de resistance somewhere in America July 1 there will be in the ring three regular men, each in the pink of condition and ready to step any distance.

And that doesn't mean that it is to be an three-cornered round. The third man in the ring very probably will be Matt Hinkel, the best known referee in the country today. And if such is the case neither Jess Willard, champion, nor Jack Dempsey, challenger, will be in the writer's estimation.

For Matt is holding his own. He has been for the last 30 years. He's now 52. He was an amateur fighter of some fame in his twenties.

"But I'm feeling younger today than I did then," said Hinkel, in explaining his reason for accepting the challenge.

It was announced that Al Shuster of New Bedford will appear at the next meeting on Thursday evening against "Louisiana" or some other big class opponent.

When the referee goes in with the boxers it is important that the fighters, We've got to keep out of the boxers' way and also not be blocking the view of the spectators at the ringside. The referee must watch every punch started and if he doesn't move in he may himself block a punch now and then.

"You've got to be on your toes in the corner," said Jimmie Gardner, with the referee as important as both the fighters. "We've got to keep out of the boxers' way and also not be blocking the view of the spectators at the ringside. The referee must watch every punch started and if he doesn't move in he may himself block a punch now and then."

Hinkel probably is the only semiprofessional referee in the country. It is a hobby with him, for he doesn't need the money. He has three quarters of a million in this world's goods. He never took a cent in his life for refereeing, and he eats sparingly the remainder of the day.

Hinkel probably is the only semiprofessional referee in the country. It is a hobby with him, for he doesn't need the money. He has three quarters of a million in this world's goods. He never took a cent in his life for refereeing, and he eats sparingly the remainder of the day.

Referees have been paid all amounts from five bucks up for being the third man in the ring. Perhaps the biggest fee a referee ever received was that in 1909. Elmer drew for officiating in the Gans-Nelson fight at Goldfield in 1909. He got $1000. He may have given $2000. Other big boxers referees have received as high as $3000 for a night.

Matt is a hundred per cent boxer. An old acquaintance, hitting him up on the last lap before the July 1 tape was reached, stopped in Matt's office because he wanted to sell his $600 Liberty bond.

"Why don't you keep it, Jim?" Matt pleaded.

"I gotta lot more," said Jim.

"Well, give me how many you have," Matt replied. "The man didn't happen to have any more in his person and Matt gave him a little lecture on patriotism, winding up with, 'It's right that you keep it, Jim.'"

THE "HAND" THAT DRAWS IN TRADE

Did it ever occur to you that well planned, shrewd, sensible advertising could be likened to a hand put out from your place of business to draw in trade? ... Advertising, like the "hand," can be strong in proportion to the more it is used. The first time we approached the smaller farmers we can say that the better our advertising the more strength there is in it, the better the "hand" has of bringing in trade. The first time of the first page of the primer of the primer of the business man to attract attention to his business with the idea of attracting patronage."

One business man says, "My goods advertise themselves," yes, but not while they remain on store shelves because folks look at them in their evening papers and in the columns of these publications. Another, a dredged boatman says, "I don't do any advertising, because I have the best trimmed windows in the city." Yes, but which see them on rainy, cold, windy days? What big store is depending on merely its windows to keep the stock turning over?

A third business man says, "I don't need to spend much money on advertising because I now have an established trade." "Established trade" is a peculiar appearance of merchandising. Once it's like a spring half a spool of wire have it in the morning but it's gone at night. The other that keeps an established trade is advertising, and it cost doesn't tell them to ask some of the old boys who lost their "established trade" by failing to keep up with their advertising.

But, we must return to the next: "Advertising is a hand to pull in trade and the best "hand" you can put out to draw in trade in Lowell is an ad in

LOWELL'S GREATEST NEWSPAPER

FOR A BETTER WORLD

There are two theories in the effort to make the world better.

One is in holding out the fear of punishment for doing wrong; and the other the hope of reward for doing right.

Both have been effective, but we think that too much stress has been put upon the fear of punishment.

Punishment, for instance, has not the value in preventing crime for gain that we have all supposed; for those who steal never do so with the idea of being caught.

Stealing is in the belief that punishment can be evaded.

The world is getting better because we, who comprise it, are finding that it pays to conduct our social and business life honestly and do our individual tasks well—efficiently.

The world is getting better just to the degree that we learn the true reward of honesty and efficiency.

There is for illustration the dis-courteous, inefficient employee of the public or semi-public institution.

We report him with the idea of his reprimand or discharge, and to instill the fear of punishment in others who might incline to dis-courtesy and inefficiency.

But how few of us ever report say the courteous, efficient street car conductor, the one who helps women with children off the car, and who is always ready to oblige his patrons by acts of kindness and courtesy.

There are always enough of us to complain, but few who command.

We are all more apt to do those things which we should do and refrain from doing those things which we should not do by the hope of reward rather than through the fear of punishment.

Here is in part a letter by the president of a big business concern to its customers and which illustrates this thought of appreciation:

"While complaint is important; yet all of us would get a good deal further along if we would be as quick to compliment when compliment is deserved.

If any of our individual salesmen or deliverymen are unusually courteous or efficient, why, let me know it so that I may offer the proper encouragement and reward.

"I will know those deserving of complaint soon enough, but I might never find the fellow deserving of reward unless I am told of him."

"I think if all of us in business would be as quick to compliment as to kick—why, this would be a good deal better business world."

Perhaps the reason we have all held out more fear of punishment than hope of reward in the matter of employment is that we have thought imprisonment cheaper than reward.

The price of administering reward is greater than that of punishment as a matter of first cost, but the final economy and profit is greater in providing true incentive to more and better effort and free from the weakening influence of fear.

TELEPHONE STRIKE

The telephone strike is settled and so far as the terms have been reported, they are not such as to offer the operators any great reason for rejoicing. The wage of $19 per week after seven years of service, considering the present high cost of living, is barely sufficient to support a girl respectfully. The operator who dresses according to the mode and lives at a respectable boarding house, assuming that she has to provide for herself, will not

DEFENDING THE LEAGUE

United States Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, in an address in Boston the other night, made an able defense of the League of Nations. He presented arguments showing its reasonableness and proving very logically that it was the only alternative of heavy taxes, increased armaments and the certainty of future destructive wars. He defended President Wilson's attitude in the matter, showing that the president, in advocating the League of Nations to prevent war, was carrying out the instructions of congress embodied in the naval appropriation bill enacted in 1917. He denied that by joining the league, any nation would surrender any part of its sovereignty. The various criticisms of the league, he maintains, were largely unjust and particularly so that which represented the league as a super-nation to which the superior powers would yield their sovereignty and lose identity. They simply form compact to do certain things of their own volition and in the full exercise of their nationalism.

The reduction of armaments, he maintained, would render it impossible for any nation inclined to war to make a surprise attack upon any of its neighbors. He pointed out that the revolutions of the Balkans and of South America had been largely due to the results of profiting by private manufacturers of munitions. The nations would not consider it necessary in the future, to arm against possible attack.

According to the senator's contention which seemed in most cases quite reasonable, there is nothing to be feared from this League of Nations and it will prove in time to be a blessing to the world at large by preventing wars and doing away for all time with the military rivalry that kept great nations competing in destructive armaments so as to be satisfied with what is fair and there should be a government tribunal to pass upon the demands made upon the government or upon the management of public service corporations. With such a method of adjudicating labor troubles in public utilities, strikes should be strictly prohibited.

As at present the American public is at the mercy of the railroad trainmen, the telegraph and telephone operators, the coal miners, the electricians and a few other crafts. Should this state of affairs be allowed to continue?

It is up to congress to take the action necessary to protect the public against the consequence of conflicts between employer and employee in public service utilities, and it is hoped that a sufficient number of congressmen will be found with courage enough to take the matter up and handle it in a proper manner.

TWO PLATOON BILL

The fact that Gov. Coolidge has offered slight objection to the two platoon bill, giving cities and towns permission to divide the working day of firemen into two shifts, indicates that after certain amendments are made, he will sign the measure.

The matter of adopting the system will then rest with the cities and towns themselves. It is quite probable that in the near future, the two platoon system will be adopted by all the progressive cities and towns of the state. But to make the change suddenly, and particularly this year or next while the people are burdened with the war taxes, would be contrary to public policy. It would entail an additional expense of least for this city that would add materially to the tax rate, already soaring to unprecedented heights.

The time will come, however, when cities must meet this question fairly and when the firemen will not be required to be on duty 24 hours a day as at present. With the constant reduction of working hours, it is only reasonable to suppose that the firemen should share in the improved conditions in regard to hours of labor and other considerations brought about by the progress of the age.

The influence of that French wine, the New Zealanders learned to drink while fighting the hooch seems to have been the thing that prevented the island nation from turning itself into an island oasis. Before the vote of the soldiers was taken, the vote in favor of prohibition was registered as showing a majority of 12,000. When the soldiers' vote was recorded, it showed they voted against prohibition by the ratio of three to one. This reduced the prohibition situation to a point where the majority against it was

THE MAN ABOUT TOWN

We understand a number of Lowell people owning motor cars, have received a written request from the Boston Y.D. celebration committee that they drive to Boston next Friday in time to allow their cars to be used to carry wounded soldiers in the great parade held in Boston on that day. Of course nearly every person thus approached in Lowell is generally found willing to help out in a case like this. There is some surprise that the Boston committee cannot secure cars enough from that big city itself and suburban Boston, but such seems to be the case. The proposition so far as Lowell folks are concerned, involves their driving their cars to Boston Friday morning and starting early enough so that they arrive punctually at 10 a.m. Then the wounded men are taken in, subject to the usual delays of course that invariably go with parade preparations. Lowell people have been told that after being given a place in the parade, they would have to drive almost constantly five hours through the Boston streets—the hardest kind of driving. They are expected to furnish their own lunch and will have to eat it as best they can while seated in their car. Presumably the always efficient Red Cross home service organization will see that the wounded doughboys do not go hungry.

First Class Private Patrick J. O'Hearn, son of the well known Lowell contractor, has sent us a copy of the Paris edition of the Chicago Tribune. It is very interesting. He also sends a piece of French money, five centimes and a piece of Huu money, a 10 pfennig piece. The German money bears the date 1917 and was made out of a poor quality of aluminum. Among the interesting bits of news contained on the front page of the Paris edition of the Tribune is advance dope on the political situation as regards the choice of the doughboys for president in 1920. The overseas paper says it finds democratic soldiers announce President Wilson suits them well enough so that they want to vote for him again if he will run for president. Their second choice is Mr. McAdoo. The republican soldiers, strangely enough indicate Gen. Woods as their choice with General Pershing running as their second choice.

We feel sure there must have been many quarts of green peas planted Saturday. All Friday forenoon teams carrying plows were to be seen hurrying towards the outskirts of the city preparatory to making garden plots, ready for the workers to start their gardens on the holiday. Of course the early gardener takes many chances. But his hard work merits the best of luck. We all wish that old Jack Frost will not visit the gardens when the buds are breaking through the surface to meet the sunlight.

The New Modesty

"The new modesty," said Clarence Underwood, the magazine illustrator, "has a frank quality. It is born of athletic beauty. The old modesty was merely a desire to conceal ugliness."

A beautiful girl in a white bathing dress came out of the water at Palm Beach the other day and advanced over the sand to her mother.

"Dear me!" the mother whispered. "You shouldn't have got wet, darling. That suit is almost transparent."

"The girl smiled calmly.

"Don't worry," she said. "I'm not deformed." —Detroit Free Press.

A Good War Worker

Miss Elsie DeWolf has been one of the best Red Cross and Liberty bond advocates in New York.

At the Colony club one day a lady came up to Miss DeWolf and said:

"So sorry my engagements prevent me from attending your Red Cross benefit! However, I'll be with you in spirit."

"Delightful," said Miss DeWolf. And where would you like your spirit to sit? In a nice $100 box, or in one of our orchestra seats at only $8?" —Detroit Free Press.

Fading a New Towel

"If there's anything slicker than the surface of an uninitiated face mop, I have not found it. Trying to dry yourself with one of those things is a useless effort. When it comes to absorption it functions about as well as a postoffice blotter."

"Last night I went into the bathroom to wash off a bit of the daily strap-hanging soil and a few shades of somebody's soft coal. All unsuspecting I groped for the towel rack after the splashing process and tagged a moisture absorber. I put my face into the folds of the alleged towel. I skid-

New Blood Gave Her Energy For Duties of Home

Found Housework a Drudgery Until She Tried the Tonic Treatment

Many men and women are tired all the time. What most of these people need is a tonic that will revitalize the blood.

That tired feeling is one of the symptoms of anemia, and it is generally accompanied by pallor, palpitation of the heart after walking upstairs, indigestion and sleeplessness.

Mrs. Stephen Murphy, of No. 74 Dartmouth street, Manchester, N.H., might still be suffering as many other men and women are suffering today had she not discovered the right tonic in time. She is anxious therefore that others should share her good fortune. She says:

"Overwork and irregular eating hours undermined my strength and health about three years ago. My stomach was so weak that nearly everything I ate caused severe pain, and there was an almost constant pain in my left side in the region of the heart. I was very weak and could hardly do my work. I was melancholy and worried constantly. At night I railed and tossed so that when sleep I got did my little good."

"A woman who had been benefited by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills one day advised me to try the remedy and I started the treatment. In two weeks time my stomach improved and after I had taken the pills for nine weeks I was completely restored to health. I sleep soundly now and am rested in the morning. I eat anything I want without discomfort and the pains in my left side have disappeared. My housework is no longer a drudgery for I do not get tired easily. I have told many of my friends about what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me."

Your own druggist can supply you with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills or you can order direct from the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N.Y., enclosing fifty cents for one box or $2.50 for six boxes. Write today for the free booklet "Building Up the Blood." —Adv.

I tried again. No use. I might just as well have tried to dry myself with oiled paper. Casting the bit of temper wrecker aside, I grabbed another yard of whiteness off the rack. Again failure. The cloth absolutely scorched the water on my brow.

"Then I called in the wife. What? I asked, 'Is the idea of putting these things on the towel rack?' —

"Why," she answered, rather hurt, "those are the new ones I worked all day to make. The old ones were all full of holes and I gave them away. I think these are lovely ones."

"Being more or less wise to the rules of domestic peace, Anthony, I said nothing more. One's face will dry without a towel, you know, and mine did. Now I see where I am going to be facing the dry-clean method of toilet the next few days, anyway. New towels are entirely innocent of their purpose in life are slicker than the retreat side of a pair of old blue serge trousers and as backward about taking to water as a summer girl in a new bathing suit." —Kansas City Star.

Did you have your "ham-and" Easter morning?

Fishing Time

The Spring's getting into my veins: I'm tired of root trees and flowers. The cobs are clouding my brains. I long for the great out-of-doors. A mouthful of keen, salty air.

What a taste of the sea would feel good.

Good. I long to be there. O, how I long to be there.

When the flounder comes out of the mud.

To sit on a worm-eaten dock. The world—and myself—feeling fine; forgetting the rounds of the clock; with a sinker, a hook and a line.

Just waiting the quick, angry jerk.

Which tells that his hook's pretty good.

O, I don't want to shirk, but I'd rather not work.

When the flounder comes out of the mud.

There are plenty of things which appear.

To me strongly the rest of the year;

But in Spring I just hanker to steal

To a place where there's no one to care.

How I look, so that any old dad

I am able to wear. O, I've got to be there.

When the flounder comes out of the mud.

—Helen Combes in New York Herald.

WAGONER MARTEL WELCOMED HOME

When the relatives and friends of Wagoner Joseph Martel read in a recent edition of the Sun of his arrival from overseas and that he was ill, the otherwise joyful nature of the occasion was somewhat dimmed. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Martel, 28 Middlesex park, later received a telegram telling of his safe arrival half an hour previous and were comforted by the statement that he was not seriously ill.

PASTOR'S RESIGNATION IS ACCEPTED

In a step which will be the final act of the First and Kirk Street Congregational churches, to-day, when the Union church accepted the resignation of the pastor, Rev. Benjamin A. Parker. The resignation of Rev. Wm. John F. English, Jr., will be read and acted upon by the Kirk street pastor at his service meeting to be held this week. The resignation of both pastors was a part of the union agreement.

The pastor will meet no one under the roof of the First Union church next Sunday, April 27, when Rev. Mr. Parker will conduct the service. At the services on the following Saturday, May 4, Rev. Mr. English will preside, and the joint members will conduct the combined services. The organization of both churches and termination of the work and new officers, committees and trustees will be elected at a business meeting to take place after the first of the services.

Rev. Mr. Parker will leave Lowell soon to assume a pastorate at Hinsdale, Vt., but Rev. Mr. English has no definite plan as yet. The First church was particularly well filled at the Easter service yesterday morning, and an overflow congregation is expected to-night Sunday.

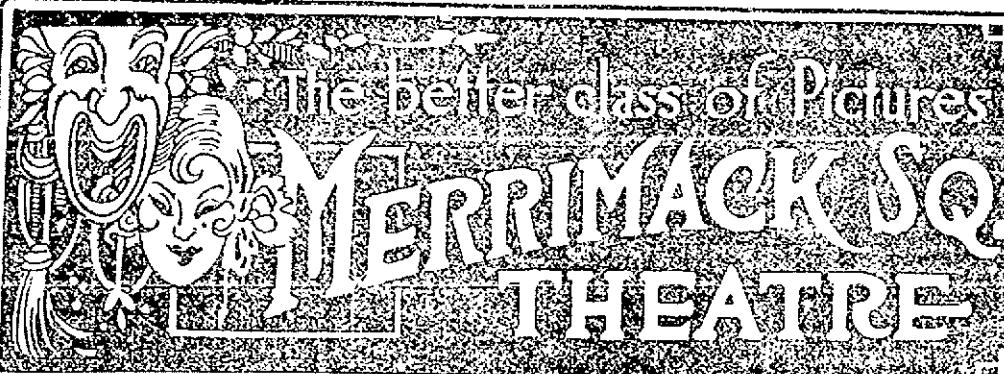

DOINGS OF THE SCREEN ARTISTS

Never knew before that Ruth Dowling was a sleep-walker. She got up in the night a few weeks ago and put her jewels in the pockets of her pajamas. Discovering her jewel case empty in the morning she sent in a wire alarm to the fire department and everything only to have the laundry maid appear with the bag of jewels. What's good for sleep walking besides staying up all night?

The big matinée which has an important role in Stewart Edward White's novel, "The Westerner," now being acted by the Great Authors Pictures, has caused considerable excitement when it appeared for its first sale. His fans were supposed to have been removed, but oh, boy, they forgot one. This lone fang was discovered just after friend snake had been tethered in a peg about four inches from the toe of Gladys Petit, who plays Freda, Welsh. When the snakes or saws the fangs he inflicted the four inches distance by one hundred in what you might call lightning calculation.

Mabel Normand gave the studio nurse a job the other day matinée her eyelashes. If you see your eyes the way you do, Mabel, what can you expect?

Jos. J. Dowling, who has delighted more picture fans than almost any other character actor on the screen, has a good part in the all-star cast

Maxine Elliott, whose beauty and skill as an actress have delighted two continents, has gone into pictures, and, as she has posed before the camera as one of the leading characters in "The External Magdalene." This powerful play, it will be remembered, was played throughout New England a few seasons ago, and created a profound impression. In picture form it is said she add as a result be appeared in no more impressive. "The External Magdalene" will probably have a local appearance soon.

The untimely death of Sydney Drew will cause national regret among theatre-goers and movie fans alike. He was an artist on both the speaking and the silent stage, for he had a keen comedy sense, both in voice and in his plays. On the stage Mr. Drew was a genial companion and his friends were legion. He will be sadly missed.

STATUS OF THE FORTY-EIGHT HOUR LAW

Special to the Sun

STATE HOUSE, Boston, April 21.—Under the initiative and referendum system adopted by employers in order to delay its operation, the 48-hour law for women and children will become effective in Massachusetts on Thursday, July 17.

Governor Coolidge signed the bill at 1:27 Friday afternoon, and under the provisions of the constitution it will become effective in 90 days. If the employers desire to delay its operation, however, they have only to obtain a few thousand names on petitions asking that the matter be referred to the people at the November election for their acceptance or rejection, and in that event it cannot take effect until about the first of December.

In signing the bill the governor used five quills. One of these will be given to Senator John Halliwell of New Bedford, on whose petition the bill was passed; another will go to Representative Michael F. Malone of Worcester, who proved the leading Democratic worker for the passage of the bill.

The third will be given to James Tancey of Fall River, who is the head of the weavers' organization, and the others will go to representatives of the American Federation of Labor and of the Women's Trade Union League.

Below is what the press agents of the different theatres say of the current attractions and of others to come.

B. F. KELLY'S THEATRE

The bill that will be dispensed at the B. F. Keith theatre this week is the big "laughing" success, "In a Pest House," which will be of the infectious variety. Those who like the old fashioned trade will find the bill will be rounded out with a good Vitagraph comedy and a Culver City musical.

For this weekend, however, the new "Rebel's Bride" and most of the bill will be rounded out with a good Vitagraph comedy and a Culver City musical.

The strongest of all Geraldine Farrar's screen offerings is her newest, "The Stronger Vow," a thrilling modern drama in the mould of "The Quick-Easing Plane." The way it sold out with the public and the cost of the film will be rounded out with a good Vitagraph comedy and a Culver City musical.

It's the story of an orphan girl who has been betrayed by a person whom she has never met and whom she nickname "Buddy Long Legs" from the fact that she walks in the shadow of his legs. She is the star of the international celebrite. She has given such wide scope to her cinematic admirers ever been enthralled and thrilled as is confidently predicted they will be by her latest screen offering.

Montague Love and June Elvridge, the most popular stars to appear on the local screen, will appear in the latest World Picture, "The Quick-Easing Plane" during the first three days of the week in connection with the above mentioned picture.

A dirigible of the Paris music halls, Juliette Dika, the woman who had kings and princes attending on her, when she essayed appearance in some of the best opportunities they have had.

The soloist for the week, Josephine, possesses a wonderful voice, and she has appeared with Contracting and other well-known opera stars, and experts to return to the operatic stage soon. In the first time he has appeared in America, outside of grand opera.

A Vitagraph comedy and the latest American film will both give sufficient variety to the program to meet the tastes of all.

Theda Bara, who is to be featured during the last three days of the week will be the big Boston success "The Eyes of Youth," which played a revival engagement at the Manhattan Opera, N. Y., after touring the country.

Manfred Carroll, tenor, is his promised to return to the patrons the song he sang the night of yesterday, today and tomorrow. He has a great voice and another feature of drawing power will be the statuary men of Athos and Read. The Native Japs are also to be seen in the Rhinoceros and a comedy film at every performance.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE: "Daddy Long Legs," adapted from the famous novel by the same name, will be the continuing Tuesday and Wednesday evenings at the Lowell Opera House. BIG DISPLAY OF EASTER STYLES YESTERDAY

Lowell was "dressed to kill" yesterday and for the first Easter in several years the downtown streets were well filled with Easter parades adorned with only that combination of radiance which such an occasion as the great festival day can bring forth.

The weather man had evidently invested in new attire for he came out in resplendent brittany and with a crisp air that only a well-dressed weather man can assume.

Miss Jane Salisbury will once more offer exceptional talent in the role of the little orphan and Julian Noah, the lead singer will also be found reflecting the rapturous moods that are his. The other members of the cast have had.

The cast is the Emerson Players, presented by the Emerson Players, the most popular stars to appear on the local screen, will appear in the latest World Picture, "The Quick-Easing Plane" during the first three days of the week in connection with the above mentioned picture.

A dirigible of the Paris music halls, Juliette Dika, the woman who had kings and princes attending on her, when she essayed appearance in some of the best opportunities they have had.

The soloist for the week, Josephine, possesses a wonderful voice, and she has appeared with Contracting and other well-known opera stars, and experts to return to the operatic stage soon.

And so the world of war was over and victory had expressed her relief in charming and attractive attire.

There were the narrow skirts, capes in all lengths, some military and some getting away from that mode, gowns of serge, satin and georgette, colored beads galore, hats with new amber blossoms, hats with little or no trimming except for a few ostrich tips, handbags of all sorts from the tiny purse to the capacious valise bag. And a dozen other things that no one reporter could photograph in his brain at one sitting.

Robert Chalker of Littleton, who shot his wife and then attempted suicide Friday, was transferred Saturday from the Lowell General hospital to the Danvers Insane asylum. His wife is still at the hospital and although seriously injured, has not yet been placed on the dangerous list.
